1,200 Here Face $13,000 Pension Loss

PAYMENTS TO BE CUT UNLESS STATE GIVES IN

Ferguson Says Aged Will Get Only Half Because of Row With Security Board.

FEDERAL SHARE HELD UP

U. S. Demands Administration Changes; Average County Pension $22 Monthly.

Approximately 1,200 old age pensioners in Richland county and 110,000 in Ohio are faced with the loss of half of their October pensions unless the state division of aid for the aged complies with demands of the Federal Social Security board by Oct. 17, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said today.

The auditor added that his staff would issue warrants on that date for the state's half of the pension payment, but pensioners would be deprived of the other half because of the Social Security board's ruling that no pension money will be allotted to Ohio unless the state makes required administration changes.

Paid To Oct. 1.

M. W. Conley, county manager of the aid for the aged division, said Richland county pensions were paid in full to Oct 1, and he had received no word pertaining to a cut in the payments for this month. Checks are usually mailed out the last week in the month, he said.

If half of the pension money is withheld, it would mean the loss of about $13,500 to Richland county, since pensioners here receive approximately $22 each, or nearly $27,000 a month.

Urges Pensioners To Protest.

Ferguson appealed to pensioners to write to Gov. Martin L. Davey and protest against his stand in refusing to comply with orders of the Social Security board, and to write President Roosevelt in opposition to the board's position.

"If we don't receive federal aid for October, pension recipients will lose $1,308,000, an amount that will not be made up later," Ferguson said. "If this goes on until the end of the year, it will mean the loss of nearly $4,000,000 to pensioners," he added.

Gov. Davey defied the Social Se-

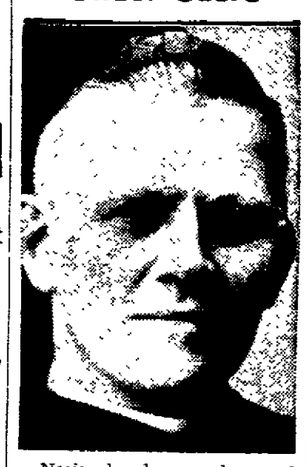
Under Guard



Nazis placed a guard around the palace of Cardinal Innitzer of Austria, and launched an investigation of the rioting Saturday night in Vienna in which his palace was damaged and several priests injured. Chancellor Hitler was reported "greatly annoyed" by the demonstration against Catholic leaders by what Nazis called "irresponsible elements" and ordered an investigation and punishment. The outbreak was caused by the cardinal's sharp criticism of the Nazis in a sermon last Friday.

CITY JOINS IN RELIGIOUS MOVE

Mayor Invites Clergymen to Meeting Tomorrow to Map Program for Mansfield.

Mansfield today joined the nation in a movement to organize and set up a religious emphasis program which is being sponsored by all religious faiths.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter has invited the clergy of Mansfield to attend a meeting at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in the common pleas court room to outline the movement here.

He has asked the clergymen of all faiths to attend the meeting accompanied by at least one layman from the congregation.

The movement is a "religious and welfare recovery program which aims at strengthening the influence of religion, and through all appropriate methods and agencies invite and inspire the largest possible attendance at services of worship throughout the year," the mayor said in his letter to pastors.

The national program has adopted as its slogan, "Every Citizen in a House of Worship Every Week."

The purpose of tomorrow's meeting is to set up a permanent organization and elect a chairman, Mayor Hunter explained.

Occupation of Border Lands Continues; Hitler Takes Steps in Disorders.

(By Associated Press)

IPOLYSAG—Czechoslovak-Hungarian Border—Hungarian troops occupied this Czechoslovak border town today in the first actual transfer of territory in Hungary's drive to regain part of the land she lost to Czechoslovakia after the World war.

More than 4,000 residents of Ipolysag, 50 miles north of Budapest, sang, danced and kissed the incoming Hungarian soldiers, whom they welcomed in the name of approximately 1,000,000 Hungarians in territory Budapest is demanding from the dismembered Czechslovak state.

Holiday Declared.

Military bands played fiery Hungarian music. The day was celebrated as a Hungarian national holiday and acclaimed as ending 20 years of mourning for Hungarians in Czechoslovakia.

(Dispatches from Komarom, the border town where Hungarian and Czechoslovak envoys are negotiating over the cession of territory, reported Hungarian troops also occupied the important railway junction of Satoralja Ujhely, across the frontier from the Hungarian town of that name and 150 miles northwest of Budapest.

(Agreement was reached Sunday at Komarom that these two points would be occupied to symbolize Czechoslovakia's willingness in principle to meet Hungary's demands.

(Budapest has disclosed these include transfer of more than 6,000 square miles; Prague has indicated this particular demand was considered excessive.)

When Lindbergh Was Welcomed By Russians

This previously unpublished photo shows Col. Charles A. Lindbergh (center) on his visit to Russia last August when he was enthusiastically welcomed by airmen at Moscow. But Vladimar Kokinaki (in white shirt) was one of 11 who called Lindbergh a "stupid liar" in a statement accusing him of giving information to England that helped Germany take part of Czechoslovakia. The statement attributed to Lindbergh, said to have been made in England and to have led Britain to decide against resorting to arms against Germany over the Czech situation, has been denied by those to whom it was reported to have been made. Lindbergh, who flew into Berlin today with his wife, said "I have nothing to say."

Viscountess Astor Denies Flier Belittled Russia and Influenced 'Deal.'

(By United Press)

LONDON — Viscountess Astor made a blanket denial today of allegations that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, at a dinner she gave in his honor, belittled the Russian air force and thus influenced the British-French "surrender" to Germany in the Sudetenland minority crisis.

First repudiating any suggestion that Lindbergh had any connection with the social circle in which she moves, Lady Astor said:

"I never have had dinner with Col. Lindbergh. This story emanated from the same source—the Daily Worker, which invented the story of a 'Cliveden set.' There is not a word of truth in it. On a previous occasion it was alleged that Viscount Astor and I had a dinner for Lindbergh when we were not even in England."

The Daily Worker is the London communist newspaper.

Lindbergh himself was silent regarding the letter of denunciation which 11 leading Russian aviators published in Moscow, alleging that he, after being the guest of Russian fliers, made remarks whose purport was that the Soviet political purge had so weakened the air force it was ineffective, and that the German air force was superior to the Russian, British, French and Czechoslovak air forces combined.

Lindbergh flew from Paris to Rotterdam, Holland, yesterday and spent the night there. He was on his way to Berlin to attend the annual meeting there tomorrow of the Lilienthal society, named in honor of the German pioneer aero-

Political Tom-Toms Beat--Vote Drive's On

Colored Elk Head Flays 'Reckless Spending' at G.O.P. Rally.

Flaying the national administration for its "reckless spending of billions," J. Finley Wilson of Washington, D. C., grand exalted ruler of the Colored Elks, called upon an audience of 200 here last night to "save your families and your country" by getting off relief.

Wilson was the principal speaker at a rally of colored Republican voters at the new Republican headquarters at which several of the district and state candidates spoke.

Says Nation Needs Jobs.

"We have got to get off relief and on a job," Wilson said. "The government's spending of 40 billions for work relief is no way to balance the budget—it can't be done by borrowing, we've got to have jobs in order to save ourselves and our country."

Wilson asserted that the negro was the white man's best friend.

"But what we must do," he said, "is to convince the white man that he should be our best friend."

He traced the negro from the Democrats Frolic, 1,200 at Dedication of New Headquarters.

More than 1,200 Richland county Democrats last night joined in the dedication of the new Democratic headquarters on West Fourth street.

The evening was given over to dancing in the spacious second floor of the new quarters. Music was furnished by State Treasurer Clarence Knisley and his 10-piece orchestra.

The social gathering was sponsored by the Richland county Young Democratic club, opening its drive for votes at the November election.

Hear Short Talks.

Several of the district and state candidates gave short talks.

Knisley, who headed the speakers, said that his office had handled more business than any other previous administration.

"The treasurer's office last year collected 383 million in receipts, which was an increase of 32 per cent over any previous year," Knisley said. "Bonds in the amount of 215 millions also were handled, an increase of 45 million over any other year."

Other speakers were Maurice Brown of Lorain, Democratic candidate for state senator from the 27th-29th district; Ralph C. Lutz of Lexington, candidate for re-election as state representative, and C. L. Mitchell, candidate for re-election to the board of county commissioners.

Short talks were also made by John C. O'Donnell, chairman of the Richland county Democratic executive committee and John Correll, president of the Young Democrats who presided as chairman.

Jurors in New Conn Slaying Trial Visit Murder Scene.

CADIZ —(AP)— Nine men and three women jurors, chosen to try Bernard Masulla, 22, of Pittsburgh, on a first degree murder charge, met today to visit the roadside scene of the year-old slaying of State Highway Patrolman George Conn.

Masulla is the second of five persons indicted in the only slaying in the patrol's history to be brought to trial. Peter Sernic of Pittsburgh, accused as the driver of the "death car" beside which Conn was shot, was acquitted Sept. 24.

Charles Ford, 20, colored, of Pittsburgh who was the state's star witness in the Serino trial, said Masulla was the "trigger man," appearing from behind the parked automobile to surprise Conn as he questioned its occupants.

CIO HEAD MAKES OFFER IN MOVE TO END DISPUTE

Proposes Two Resignations In Answer To A. F. of L. Suggestion That He Leave CIO Leadership; "Willing To Resign Today," He Says.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—John L. Lewis offered today to resign as chairman of the CIO if William Green would resign as president of the A. F. of L., to pave the way for peace between the two organizations.

Lewis told newsmen that the suggestion from the federation's Houston convention that Lewis withdraw from the CIO was "manifestly not a uni-lateral problem."

"Obviously it's bi-lateral," Lewis said, "and the same suggestion would apply to Mr. Green whose recent ferocity seems to know no bounds.

"In any event, I think it worth trying.

"I advise I'm willing to resign today or tomorrow or any day thereafter as chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization if Mr. Green is willing simultaneously to resign as president of the American Federation of Labor.

It then may be possible for the remaining leaders of the Federation of Labor and the CIO to conclude a peace pact, in which event the contribution by Mr. Green and myself may be of some value."

Would Act Immediately.

Lewis, speaking in a slow, deliberate voice, said if the federation's convention wants to accept his suggestion he immediately upon such acceptance would file his own resignation with the CIO.

The CIO chairman opened his remarks to newsmen by indirectly suggesting that the president's special commission which studied labor conditions in Great Britain and Sweden well might investigate the situation in the United States.

"Our public commission has peered into the mind behind the British monocle and has psychoanalyzed our Swedish friends," he said. "It does seem there's an obligation to know and understand our own problems.

"I think there is a scriptural injunction to pick a mote out of your own eye before digging too far into your neighbor's optic.

"Perhaps such a commission could get the facts behind the allegations of Messrs. Green, Frey and Woll and their ilk at the Houston convention."

John P. Frey is president of the AFL metal trades department. Matthew Woll is AFL vice-president.

"The hymn of hate changed at Houston yesterday makes me feel very sad," Lewis said, "not because of the scurillous epithets that were directed at me but because the whole incident brings further confusion and greater strife into the labor movement.

The men and women who will really pay the price of this con-

BEGIN DEFENSE IN LABOR CASE

30 Ideal Electric Officials, Employes to Be Called at NLRB Hearing.

Defense witnesses for the Ideal Electric and Manufacturing company were to go on the stand today in the National Labor Relations board hearing of charges of unfair labor practices against the Mansfield firm.

With more than 30 plant officials, foremen and employes scheduled to testify for the company, Thomas F. Veach, Cleveland, attorney for the defendant company, said the company would contend that slack business conditions forced plant officials to lay off workers or to accept less pay.

The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers' union, which filed the charges, argued that two employes were laid off last winter because they were active in the union, a CIO affiliate. Local 705 of the union seeks NLRB certification as the sole bargaining agency for employes with the Ideal company.

Otto Lommatzsch, secretary of the local, testified yesterday afternoon that CIO union membership has ranged as high as 85 per cent of the employes. Lommatzsch was the last witness to testify for the union which completed its testimony late yesterday.

The hearing which began at the courthouse more than a week ago was expected to continue all of this week. Examiner Webster Powell of the NLRB is presiding.

Thebaud has the opening race tucked away in her locker, and she needs but two more of the three-out-of-five series to take the throne occupied by the queen of the most turbulent waste of water on the globe.

Capt. Charles M. Lyons, chairman of the race committee, said he would present to the full committee measurements which showed Bluenose had an excessive water line length.

They were arrested on South Park street yesterday by police.

College Students, Lost In Caverns 48 Hours, Rescued

DOUGHERTY, Okla. —(U.P.)— Two college students were taken alive and unharmed, from the mysterious caverns of Arbuckle mountains today. They had been lost in the dank, pitch-black underground wilderness for more than 48 hours.

It had been feared that they had drowned or were hopelessly lost in explored caverns.

The youths were Thurman K. Treadwell, jr., 18, and Hugh Glen Munroe, 17, students at the East Central State Teachers college. They had lost their flashlight, and, believing their only chance of rescue was to wait for a searching party, they had stayed in the cold and blackness until a party arrived early today.

Treadwell is the son of the head of the college's extension department. He and Munroe set out for the caverns from their homes in Ada Sunday.

When they had not returned last night, Treadwell's father organized the teachers and students of the college into a searching party.

Political Patronage System Puts U. S. On Dictatorship Road, Foremen Warned

Place Some Elective Jobs Under Civil Service, Akron Dean Urges.

If our present political patronage system continues, one major party will soon have enough office holders and their friends in power so that it can't be defeated, and then we will be headed toward a dictatorship, Dean Fred E. Ayer of Akron university, said last night in a talk to the Mansfield Foremen's club at Westbrook Country club.

"The patronage system enables politicians to pay their political debts with our money, yet most of us stay at home at the primaries and let the practice continue without doing anything about it," he asserted

"If we want to keep our democracy in the face of the changes that are taking place in other parts of the world, we must learn more about our government and the men we elect to office, and take an active part in the making of government," Dean Ayer said.

"Let's abolish some of the elective offices and put civil service in operation for the higher brackets," he urged. "Young men should make a life's work of the profession of government, not something merely to bring profit to themselves."

Scheduled to talk on "The Foreman's Responsibility to Employer and Employe," Dean Ayer flayed politicians and the "let-alone" attitude of the public and criticized the administration for piling up a huge national debt.

Court Plea Lost, Mooney Demands Immediate Pardon

BANKS HOPES ON CALIFORNIA ELECTION RACE

Bomb Prisoner Sends Wire to Governor, Tells Him Last 'Excuse' Disappears.

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO—Thomas J. Mooney, convicted of the Preparedness day bombing here in 1916, turned his back on the courts today and placed his hopes for freedom on political or economic action.

All court action pressed in his behalf during the years he has spent in San Quentin prison ended with the supreme court's denial of a writ of certioari to review his case, Mooney said.

Two wires were sent by Mooney, one to his attorney, John F. Finerty, in Washington, D. C., in which the supreme court was denounced, and the other to Gov. Frank F. Merriam.

Merriam was asked to grant him an immediate public hearing and make a decision on an application for immediate pardon prior to the Nov. 8 general elections.

'Demands' Action.

"You have resorted to the time-worn political subterfuge of declining to act on the grounds that the case is pending in the courts," Mooney said. "You are hereby duly notified by me that all court actions in my behalf are now concluded and no other actions are contemplated and I now not only insist but demand that this outrageous procrastination be ended..."

Merriam is one of six governors all Republicans, who have been asked to set Mooney free. Several refused outright and others failed to take action on pleas. The case has been fought through all the courts, winding up with yesterday's supreme court decision.

Finerty with George Davis, another Mooney lawyer, talked of instituting an original action for a writ of habeas corpus similar to that turned down by the California state supreme court last year.

Mooney's wire to Finerty, however, disclosed he was "absolutely opposed" to filing any other court action. Mooney said the supreme court decision was "monstrously unjust" and "branded the court as a bulwark of the predatory, corporate anti-labor interests of America."

His opposition to further court action was taken to indicate that the now gray-haired, 55-year-old prisoner was basing his hopes for freedom on a pardon from Culbert L. Olson, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, in the event Olson is elected.

Olson was Mooney's choice for governor on the Democratic primary ticket and has been quoted as saying he would free Mooney if elected.

New Fight Flares On Claim Justice Owes 800 Drivers

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The battle of Brunswick flared again today with the Cleveland Automobile club contending Justice of the Peace Mark Lutz of Brunswick, Medina township, owed 800 odd motorists one dollar each.

Lutz, however, announced he would pay out no dollars until the state attorney general's office told him to.

It all was the result of the Auto club's charge some time ago that Lutz and Constable Walter Petchler conducted a "trap" for unwary motorists at a triffic light which rules over the intersection of U. S. route 30 and state route 303. The Auto club erected warning signs, and the state examiner sent J. R. Attenholt to make an examination of Lutz's books.

Attenholt found no loss to the state, but he ruled that the two dollar fee charged for hearing a case when jury trial was waived, was just one dollar too much. Any motorist, and the Auto club says there are 800 of them, who paid two dollars is entitled to a refund, Attenholt said.

'EDUCATE' STEEL LEADERS TOLD

Mt. Vernon Institute Head Says Industry Stands to Lose Price Powers.

(By Associated Press)

FRENCH LICK, Ind.—Clyde G. Conley of Mt. Vernon, O., president, told the American Institue of Steel Construction as it opened its annual convention here today that industrialists would lose to the government the power to set prices unless they took better care to "educate the public."

He said they already had lost the privilege of regulating industrial relations.

"If we lose our right to price our product and our services," Conley went on, "we will lose it because of our failure to make the public realize that competition is still the rule of industry and because of our failure to expose the propagandists' claim that monopoly is rampant."

He told steel men manufacturers were "permitting the populace to carry everything before their demands" and social security, collective bargaining and the like had come "not because of any sound economy behind them, but because the intelligent industrialist has been afraid to speak out."

President Roosevelt he termed "not the cause of the trouble, but the Result."

Community Players to Seek New Talent Tomorrow.

Public try-outs for the Mansfield Community Players will be held at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Chamber of Commerce room in the Farmers Bank building, with Mrs. Helen Bacon, director of the Players, in charge.

While only one play has been definitely decided upon, promising talent that develops in the try-outs will be held in reserve for the other two plays of the season, and characters will be cast for the first presentation, "The Queen's Husband" on Nov. 29.

Dr. Philmour Bein, chairman of the play reading committee, said that the plan to produce "Death Takes a Holiday" would probably be abandoned, as many Mansfielders have already seen it. The committee is looking about for two modern plays.

Tickets for the season are being sold by the Women's association of First Congregational church, under the chairmanship of Mrs. W. D. Abrams.

SEEK NEW AVENUE OF ESCAPE FOR DOOMED POISON KILLER

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Unwilling to accept the popular belief that now the fate of Anna Marie Hahn is sealed, defense counsel plumbed the legal depths today for some as yet indistinct avenue of escape from the electric chair.

But while Defense Attorney Hiram Bolsinger hastened here from Cincinnati to confer with her on future legal maneuvers, word from "death row" was that the convicted poison murderess was manifesting an almost disinterested attitude.

She seems resigned to become the first woman to die in Ohio's electric chair, Father John A. Sullivan, Catholic chaplain, revealed. He and Warden James C. Woodard advised her of the rejection of her appeal by the U. S. supreme court.

They learned that the news already had reached Anna over the radio outside her special cell in "death row." But instead of finding her hysterical, they reported her remarkable fortitude unshaken.

It was believed that Bolsinger and Co-Counsel Joseph Hoodin, in a motion for rehearing, would insist upon a U. S. supreme court ruling on the constitutionality of the Ohio criminal code section which permitted introduction of testimony concerning asserted crimes other than the poisoning of Jacob Wagner for which she was tried.

If Hoodin and Bolsinger fail in future legal moves only Governor Davey could save the blond German immigrant, now 32, from the chair.

In most quarters it was believed the governor would refuse to commute the sentence to life imprisonment.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

SEEKS REVIVAL OF INVALIDATED PROCESSING TAX

Secretary Drafts Four-Point Program to Solve Surplus, Low Price Problems.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and his aides are completing a four-point program designed to quiet rumblings of dissatisfaction over heavy crop surpluses and low farm prices.

The program includes:

1. Continuation of existing crop control law, with referenda on marketing quotas to keep next year's cotton, tobacco, rice and wheat crops in line with expected needs.

2. A recommendation to congress that it revive processing taxes invalidated by the supreme court in 1936. Funds raised by the taxes would supplement present farm subsidies.

3. Greater emphasis on expanding domestic markets for surplus farm products.

4. Reorganization of agriculture department, announced a few days ago, for greater efficiency in serving farmers.

Reports Surpluses.

Assistants said Wallace believed this program would fortify the administration against any proposals at the next session of congress for outright fixing of farm prices at sharply increased levels.

The federal crop reporting board emphasized in its October report yesterday that abundant supplies of most food, feed, forage, tobacco and cotton crops were in prospect. The major crops facing excessive surpluses include cotton, wheat, and possibly corn and rice.

The October report forecast a 1938 corn crop of 2,459,316,000 bushels, indicating a government loan rate of about 61 cents a bushel. If the November reports indicates a crop of less than about 2,717,000,000 bushels and the average farm price is below 57 cents a bushel Nov. 15, such a loan rate will be mandatory.

It is unlikely, officials said, that the November figure will increase the estimate above 2,717,000,000-bushel level.

The general level of farm prices is the lowest since 1934, because of heavy supplies and business recession. Officials have estimated that the national farm income this year will be about a billion dollars less than in 1937.

Officials said that under Wallace's program growers would be asked to restrict plantings next year and to approve marketing quotas, under which excessive production would be taxes if sold. The department plans to hold referenda on cotton, tobacco and rice marketing quotas early in December.

BABY BEATEN

Mother Accused of Piercing Children With Hot Needles.

NEW YORK—(INS)—A 22-month-old toddler, solemn-faced and sad-eyed, was in Bellevue hospital today, her little body covered with welts and bruises inflicted, the police say, by her own mother to "make her mind."

Mrs. Helen Hollis, mother of the toddler and six other children, the oldest seven years, was under arrest suspected of having used hot needles, a coal shovel and heavy broom to train her little brood.

An anonymous letter to police brought the investigation which resulted in Mrs. Hollis' arrest.

"In God's name do something to stop the brutality against the Hollis kids," it read, "their lives are hell on earth."

SAIL FOR SPAIN

Italian Ships Leave To Bring Troops Back.

ROME — (U.P.) — Four Italian troop ships left Naples today to embark 10,000 Italian soldiers whom Premier Benito Mussolini is withdrawing from the Spanish civil war.

Disclosures that the ships had left came at a time when negotiations between the Italian and British governments over application of their friendship agreement seemed deadlocked.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Landis, Baseball Rules Owe Hornsby Chance to Reply to Vague Charges

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Judge Landis has not quite made clear his reasons for barring Rogers Hornsby from the press coop at the World Series, but, whatever they were, they were insufficient. He should have no more authority to bar anyone from the ball yard press coops than a president of the United States has to rule a man out of the press gallery of congress.

Hornsby is a noted veteran of the baseball industry, and if there are any bugs on his record, Landis should have the courage to give him a trial and either rule him off openly or clear him while he was still active in the business.

This may seem a small issue, but the actions of the judge and—a few years ago—of Jim Farley in the prize fight business in New York have tended to weaken public resistance to the assumption of dictatorial powers by men in public office.

True, Landis is an employe of the baseball industry, but that does not entirely relieve him of public responsibility.

* * *

He came to his job at a time when it was openly known that some ball players had been "whispered out" of the game on the suspicion of collusion with crooked gamblers and, with his own record of fearlessness on the bench, was expected to guarantee the public protection from conspiracy and the players protection from unjust punishment for mere secret accusation.

Hornsby's case indicates that the baseball magnates are up to their old methods again, for there obviously is some conspiracy against him, and yet he never has had an opportunity to confront any charges.

* * *

Farley, in his time as chairman of the Prize Fight commission, developed an appetite for arbitrary power by watching the dictatorial actions of old William Muldoon, his colleague on the board, who became so arrogant that any offense, however unintentional, to his swollen dignity was punishable by the authority of New York state.

It was an offense even to smoke a cigaret in his presence because he hated cigarets and those who smoked them. He was a man to be flattered and placated at any sacrifice, and Mr. Farley sat by and upheld him in a rule which clearly imposed on the legal rights of petitioners before the commission.

The baseball writers themselves are in part to blame for the judge's extension of his authority to the press coop. For years they permitted the reservation to be made a hangout for dozens of men having no connection with the newspaper business, and there came a time when the rows were so cluttered with guests and ball players by their ghosts that an ordinary working stiff with a story to write had to do his stuff on an eight-inch section of plank with sightseers sprawled all over him from both sides and behind.

* * *

This old fraud has just about expired now, and sport sections which once were largely given over to pathetic fakes attributed to ball players, and even to their wives and children, are now filled by the work of professional newspapermen. In Washington the accredited journalists guard their privileges, and an effort is made to keep out lobbyists and others having no rightful place in the press gallery, lest there come a scandal—something which would smear the good name of the corps.

As for the old ball players, the industry itself should make provisions to accommodate them in a veterans' section in the stands.

It does seem cheap and unappreciative of the magnates not to welcome at least those who have played in past World Series and certain others of great distinction, where, to accommodate them, the writers have to falsify their legitimate ticket requirements.

Landis, however, extends his power to the press coop and the air in baseball and gives a challenging example of the manner in which a little authority may be enlarged.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—One smart girl grows up:

On the evening of Dec. 4 there'll be a birthday party at Andre de Segurola's house. The guest of honor, who is de Segurola's star voice pupil, will be celebrating 16 years of life, the last three spent in the glaring light that falls on a real movie celebrity.

Deanna Durbin will wear her hair "up" for the occasion—but she will not be escorted by a "boy friend." So all the mammas of growing girls can breathe easily again.

What Shirley Temple is to the nine-year-olds, Deanna is to the adolescent girls. What Deanna does on the screen—and in her private life too—is extremely important. If Deanna starts "dating" or acquires a "steady," I'm sure it will be an advent as cataclysmic as the first occasion on which Shirley Temple gets wise to spinach. The mothers of America will deplore . . . AND write in.

This is no idle gossip. The mothers of America already have written in, and they will do so again. To Deanna, to Deanna's mamma, to Joseph Pasternak, Deanna's producer, letters rushed in perishing-the-thought that Deanna might be allowed a screen boy-friend in "That Certain Age."

* * *

Right now, on the threshold of the sweetest possible 16, Deanna is a young lady of quiet poise and assurance which masks a natural shyness; she is given to deliberate, serious answers to some of your casual questions—and again, with a laugh that is half smile, half gigle, she'll chatter away for all of two minutes at a stretch. She did this about putting her hair "up" for the first time, and she repeated on the matter of the possible "boy-friend."

"Oh, I can't," she said. "There are so many people who object—and then there are SOME newspaper critics," she added with just the ghost of a pout, "who always look for a chance to write up things like that. I went with Jackie Cooper to the 'Tom Sawyer' preview—my mother and father and his mother and father went with us—and the next day someone wrote that Jackie and I were seen together at some cheap night club and how awful it was!"

"But were you?" the prosecution demanded sternly.

"Oh, NO-O-O-o-o!" Deanna's blue eyes widened. "I've never been in a night club—except to sing when the studio used to send me. And oh, yes—I saw some in New York but that was because Mr. Pasternak told me to. So I'd know what they were like, because in the picture I had to go to one."

* * *

"Manage?"

"I mean I have a good time—at home, with friends, or just by myself. I have a good time."

Deannna's ultimate ambition is to sing in opera. She hasn't had time to study it, however.

Her next picture is "Three Smart Girls Grow Up." One striking evidence that Deanna is growing up is in her fingernails. She doesn't bite them any more.

"Oh, I made a deal," she explained, "with Mr. Koster. Mr. Henry Koster, my director. I said I'd stop biting my nails if he'd stop smoking cigarets."

Does She Want Man or Natty Dresser?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For the past year I've been keeping company with the most wonderful boy in the world. He is ideal in every way, except that he doesn't know how to wear his clothes well. So often I compare him with the other boys in my office who are natty dressers. Could marriage with a man of this sort be happy, or would I do better to marry a boy who keeps his trousers pressed?

IN DOUBT.

If your thoughts run in that direction, I should certainly advise you to pick a tailor's dummy instead of a real man for a husband. From your letter I get the impression that you think more of how a man's clothes fit than whether he has brains or character. But don't marry a man who is indifferent to his appearance and then nag him because he doesn't send his clothes to be pressed.

Take him, unpressed clothes and all, or leave him in peace. Oftentimes a wife knows how to go about seeing that her husband looks smart without seeming to pester him about it.

* * *

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been going with a young man, who is six years older than I am, and I am 30. We are engaged to be married, and as this was my first proposal, perhaps I've been too hasty. I really don't know much about this person, as he comes to see me once a month for a few days, and the rest of the time I know nothing at all about him. He lives in another town. I am sincerely in love with this man but doubt very much whether I should marry him.

"OLD MAID.

It is very natural for you, having fallen in love, to begin to wonder a little about the person to whom you have promised yourself.

Before your emotions ensnare you any further, please remember that numbers of women have become involved in serious unhappiness, even in danger, through marrying agreeable strangers. Insist on meeting your sweetheart's family and friends. If he refuses this request, it is best to forget him and turn your thoughts to new acquaintances. My best wishes to you.

Tourists to the Baltic Republics of Esthonia, Lithuania and Latvia sometimes think that the sea is fresh water. Its salinity is only 8 per cent as compared with the Atlantic's 35 per cent, and the Mediterranean's 39 per cent.

Nourishing Desserts Favored Now

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

GOOD, nourishing desserts—that's what we want these days, and that is what we are offering our readers today.

Cinnamon fluff is a dessert that we guarantee will speedily become a family favorite. It calls for two-thirds cup sugar, one-half cup butter, two well-beaten eggs, one cup sour milk, teaspoon each soda and baking powder, one and one-half cups flour and two tablespoons cinnamon. Cream butter and sugar together, then stir in the eggs. Sift flour before measuring, then sift together three times all the ingredients. Add these alternately with the milk and beat one minute. Put the mixture in a buttered baking dish and put aside until topping is made. For the topping, mix together one-half cup sugar, tablespoon butter and one tablespoon cinnamon. Spread this over the batter and bake in a slow oven for about 30 minutes or until a tester comes out clean.

Glazed Spiced Apple.

Glazed spiced apples, utterly delicious but, oh! so cheap, are our next offering. This recipe needs three cups sugar, one and one-half cups water, one two-inch piece stick cinnamon, teaspoon whole cloves, one blade of mace, one whole black pepper, lemon or orange peel, six small apples and one-quarter cup lemon juice. Mix the sugar and water in a fairly deep pan with a wide base. Add the spices and peel after putting them in a loosely-tied bag. Bring all to a rapid boil, skim carefully, then add the lemon juice. Into this mixture place the pared and cored apples. Simmer gently, turning apples frequently, taking care not to break them. When apples are clear, remove them from the syrup and place on individual serving dish. Remove spice bag and boil the syrup until it sheets from spoon. Pour it over the apples and let cool. A topping of whipped cream and a garnish of chopped nutmeats or maraschino cherry make this a real party dessert.

Apple Marmalade.

Apple marmalade charlotte is a light sweet, and delicious. Grate some bread crumbs, and in a well-greased oven dish make layers of bread crumbs, marmalade and peeled, sliced apples, with dabs of butter between the layers. Finish with bread crumbs, sift with sugar, and add more dabs of butter. Moisten with a little marmalade water (a little warm water mixed with a spoonful of marmalade), and bake. Do not let the pudding be too dry nor yet too moist, and take to a light-brown crispness. This is a favorite in the nurseries of fashionable London households.

Steamed molucca calls for one and one-third cups all-purpose flour, one-half teaspoon soda, teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-quarter teaspoon nutmeg, two-thirds cup whole wheat or graham flour, one cup sliced dates, one-third cup shortening, one cup brown sugar, one egg and one-half cup sour milk. Sift flour, soda, baking powder, salt and spices together. Add graham flour and sugar thoroughly. Add unbeaten egg and beat two minutes. Add milk alternately with dry ingredients. Pour into greased custard cups. Cover with two pieces of waxed paper, tie with a string and steam for about an hour.

Creamed Green Beans and Mushrooms on Crisp Noodles
Hot Muffins Tomato Salad
Betty's Cake Coffee

Creamed Green Beans and Mushrooms—Cut fresh green beans into inch-length pieces and cook in salted water until tender. Make cream sauce of one tablespoon butter, one of flour, one cup milk. Season to suit taste. Add mushrooms (either canned or fresh) and beans to cream sauce and serve over noodles that are toasted until crisp and brown. If you use fresh mushrooms, cut them in small pieces and fry gently in butter until tender — about five minutes.

Betty's Cake—One cup sugar, two-thirds cup butter, three eggs, one cup milk, two and one-half cups flour, one-quarter teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder. Cream butter well, cream sugar with it a little at a time. Add egg yolks well beaten. Add flour which has been sifted with salt and baking powder alternately with milk, then fold in egg whites.

A heavy iron has little, if any, advantage over a lightweight one, since pressing is done mostly through the evaporation of moisture and the movement of the iron.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

I WAS glad of the opportunity given me by the knock at the door to get away momentarily from the necessity of keeping my countenance controlled and unrevealing in the face of Mary's inadvertent "Otherwise," which she so abruptly cut off.

"And now"—she smiled up at me from her pillows—"I suppose I'll have to down that sedative."

"You already have it inside you," I smiled back at her. After a startled glance, she shook a shapely fist at me.

"You daughter-of-a-sea cook!" she ejaculated. "Soused in the milk! And I never suspected! There wasn't the trace of a taste."

"There wasn't intended to be," I told her demurely, and she laughed gleefully.

"Well—you put it over," she conceded. "And I actually feel as if I could sleep. But please awaken me in time to see the boys before they go."

"I'll call you when I do them," I promised her. "Good night!"

I stooped to kiss her, and she threw her strong, young arms around my neck, almost robbing me of breath.

"Thank you so much for everything," she said, "and especially for Noel."

Miss Whitlock Returns.

I left her with the name of her young husband warm upon her lips. Going back into the living room, I shut the door softly behind me and sat down in an easy chair with my own glass of hot milk beside me, to wait until I was sure the sedative had had time to take effect.

Miss Whitlock's door, which had been left ajar, noiselessly swung open, and she padded through it in felt slippers that were soundless.

"Did she take it?" she whispered when she had sat down opposite me.

"Yes. How long?"

"Twenty minutes, to be safe," she assured me. "How about your headache? Shall I get you something?"

"I haven't any," I murmured from the side of my mouth. "That was only an excuse to see you later."

"I thought so," she said, and I held out the container of milk.

"Won't you pour you a glass?" I said.

She looked appraisingly at the contents.

"Thank you, I will," she whispered, smiling. "There are at least two glasses in there, and if you plan to keep awake for a time, you shouldn't drink too much of it."

"That's what I was thinking," I returned. Then she went to her room for a glass and upon returning settled herself opposite me.

"I don't think we'd better even whisper until the twenty minutes are up," she said, and I nodded in agreement.

Ordinarily that twenty minutes, spent in enforced silence, would have seemed that many hours, but I found myself so absorbed by the ramifications of the word "Otherwise," which Mary had so abruptly left hanging in the air, patently regretful she had uttered it, that the time Miss Whitlock had named fairly flew by me.

"Time's up!"

Miss Whitlock whispered the words, and then switched out our light, leaving only a small one at the other end of the room, the light from which could not possibly penetrate Mary's bedroom should her door be open.

"I'll just make sure everything's jake," the nurse said, and went to Mary's door on swift, noiseless feet, while I sat waiting tensely for her return.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

WE ARE going to add a full line of cosmetics and creams to our merchandise. Madame has been working very quietly with two chemists and yesterday she made the announcement to the trade and to the press.

She has created all the color harmony and make-up for Consuelo's new show and that is going to get quite a bit of publicity, especially as new and novel lighting is to be used in the production, light that will simulate sunshine and daylight as closely as anything in the theater can.

Our customers have been asking why we didn't put out our own line of cosmetics for a long time. I wondered why we didn't and now I know that Madame was looking for some really good formulas. It seems that she has hit upon some excellent recipes.

Pretty Containers.

The line is to be simply but effectively bottled and packaged, with de luxe containers for which refills will be available. The simple boxes and jars will just fit into the beautiful containers. The new line has just arrived, so I am going to get the whole works and try the things for myself.

We are opening a charming room off the main accessory department and this will be fitted with make-up booths that will have experts in charge. Madame doesn't want any of our customers to purchase any make-up until it has been tried. The creams and lotions are for various types of skin, so that as far as possible, all hit and miss methods of buying cosmetics has been eradicated. Special make-ups will be devised for wear with various fabrics and colors.

Smart Untrimmed Coat.

My mind is on a smart but effective untrimmed coat that I can wear with furs and scarfs. Here's a grand model, done in a novelty weave, woolen in soft toast-brown. Brown leather makes the buttons and the belt. From one shoulder comes a scarf-like piece that slips through the belt and in which there is a slit pocket. This piece can be worn over the shoulder like a scarf.

THEATER

THE fifth of the Judge Hardy series is coming up and it will be titled "Out West With the Hardys." Everyone connected with it, producer, director and cast, are hoping that it will be another natural like the fourth episode, "Love Finds Andy Hardy," but that seems too much to ask in the way of good luck. Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker, Ann Rutherford (who was one of the love interests in the last episode) and Sara Haden will have their regular roles, but added to the regular cast this time is Ralph Morgan, Virginia Weidler and Nana Bryant.

* * *

Promising Newcomer.

Pretty Ellen Drew, who plays the girl next door in the Bing Crosby-Fred MacMurray feature, "Sing You Sinners," is considered one of the most promising of the new faces. The part wasn't considered very important, but Ellen registered so well that better things are said to be in store for her. The picture, one of Crosby's most entertaining, is at the Ohio through Wednesday.

* * *

Tries for Comeback.

Nancy Carroll, once one of the top-ranking stars of pictures and whose career was cut short by a combination of too much temperament and too little ability to meet the change from silent to talking pictures, makes an appearance in "That Certain Age" in a minor role. She plays the woman reporter in the Deanna Durbin film, which is at the Madison. Melvyn Douglas and Jackie Cooper are Deanna's leading men.

* * *

Always Gets Her Man.

When a determined young woman sets out to catch a young man he hasn't much chance, not even if he climbs a tree to escape her. Miriam Hopkins demonstrates this in "Woman Chases Man," which is a Majestic feature. An amusing comedy, with Joel McCrea as the man who gets chased. Charles Winninger and Eric Rhodes are in the cast. A Jones Family episode is the second feature.

* * *

Filmed After 70 Years.

Although "Little Women" is more than 70 years old and has always been a sort of "bible" for girlhood reading, it was never screened until R. K. O. made it with Katharine Hepburn as Jo. It had been played on the stage a number of times, with such famous players as Catharine Cornell and Alice Brady. The film version is at the Park, with "Down In Arkansas" as a second feature.

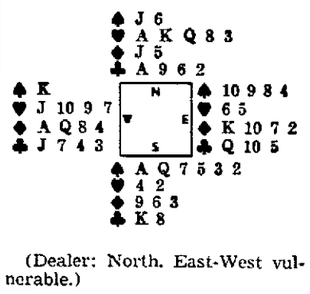
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BET ON THE LONG SHOT

A rubber bridge declarer is obliged sometimes to be like a race track plunger who stakes his all on a long shot, as his only chance to come out ahead on the day. Dropping a singleton king or queen can be right in that class, if the trumps are badly divided against him.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal began by North calling 1-Heart, South 1-Spade, North 2-Hearts, South 2-Spades, North 2-No Trump, South 3-Spades and North 4-Spades.

When the heart J was led by West it was apparent to the declarer that he would possibly lose two diamonds and therefore would have to limit his trump losers to one to make his game.

Missing the K, 10, 9 and 8 of spades, South realized, after winning the first trick with the heart A, that if he finessed the J or Q of trumps and the trick lost to the K that one of the other outstanding trumps would be bound to win and his chances for game would fade.

He therefore decided to lay down the spade A and the drop of the singleton K assured him that East could claim only one trump trick. Next came the spade 2 to the J, followed by the two high hearts. East ruffing the latter. On this trick South discarded a diamond. East returned a diamond to West, who cashed the A and Q. Declarer lost exactly three tricks.

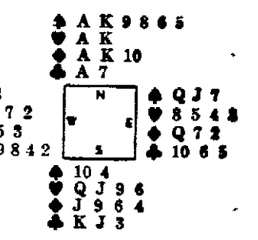
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer. North. East-West vulnerable.)

Playing for 6-No Trump, how should South proceed after the lead of the club 4?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Oct. 12.

A particularly eventful and progressive day is presaged by important planetary aspects. Much will be stirring in both private and business lives, with new matters of moment in each direction being put over at high tension and with much commotion, gratification and pleasure. All may entail rather generous expenditure or financial outlay, with probable later embarrassments or anxieties. Secret or subtle affairs may flourish.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of splendid enterprise and attainments, in which undercover agreements, co-operation or even collusion may give the desired "boost." Personal friendship or intrigue may be influential, with much social indulgence and possible heavy expenditures. These may later be a matter of embarrassment or concern, unless moderation be employed.

A child born on this day may be very energetic and productive in large enterprises or organizations, in which its engaging personality and popularity should assist its fine creative talents.

It is perfectly correct to ask a person to repeat his name if you do not understand it during an introduction.

American League Has Eye on Pacific Coast Territory

Browns May Be Moved

Harridge Toys With Idea of Shifting Franchises to Los Angeles, 'Frisco.

By EDWARD W. COCHRANE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The problem of the possible revision of one of the major league circuits is right now occupying much of the attention of Ford C. Frick and Will Harridge, presidents of the National and American leagues respectively.

It is believed a move will be made during the winter to transfer one or two clubs in order to increase the turnstile revenue.

Fail to Draw.

All the club owners have grown weary of accepting a bag of peanuts so to speak, for their end of some gates. Especially is this true in the case of the St. Louis Browns. They are considering with more than ordinary interest the possibility of taking in Los Angeles and San Francisco, making one of the loops a nation wide circuit.

Baseball is a commercial enterprise. Those with huge investments in the majors—the total running to something like $15,000,000—are not willing to continue to lose money on their visits to the Browns, the Phillies and the Athletics, not to mention one or two more. They demand that such clubs be improved and the gate receipts brought up to a figure that enable visitors to at least pay expenses on their visits

With new streamline trains and airplane travel, it is entirely possible to take in the two California cities. It is easy to travel to California from several major league points and lose only one day. Major league clubs lost so many days because of rain that the schedules could be so arranged that no time would be lost.

Will Harridge said the other day: "I believe Los Angeles and San Francisco would be successful major league towns and the transportation problem is easily solved. The one problem is satisfying owners of the Pacific Coast league, which has territorial rights there, and they must be satisfied."

Mr. Harridge hinted that his league is casting its eyes out that way with the idea that it might grab the territory, if the club owners of that circuit can be paid off, before the National makes the move. It likely would mean the removal of the Browns and Athletics to California, should this occur. They certainly have not made any money in a long time.

Coast Wants Majors.

Satisfying the coast league owners is something else It is a fact that a major league invasion there would wreck that circuit However, it is likely that a little financial consideration would cause most of the owners to welcome the wreck. It is understood that Seattle is the only club that really made any money this year. Los Angeles is said to have made nothing, although winning a pennant.

SCOUTS REPORT ENOUGH MATERIAL IN MINORS TO KEEP YANKEES ON TOP.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mickey Cochrane's intimates say he is through with baseball for keeps. . . . Yankee scouts, in for the series, say the Rupperts have enough insurance down on the farms to keep 'em winning pennant and world champions for another ten years. . . . The pro clubs are giving Columbia's Sid Luckman plenty of looking over these Saturdays and at least five hope to land him. . . . MacPhail tells you he's talking to almost everyone in the country about the Brooklyn job, but Leo Durocher has the inside track with Charles Dressen of Nashville pushing hard . . .

Ziggy Sears, jr., whose dad just finished officiating in the world series, has shifted from Alabama to Texas Christian . . . he's quite a football player but he won't do the Texans any good because he gave up his amateur standing last spring to play professional baseball. . . .

Members of the Kansas City Blues voted Ted Williams of Minneapolis a better hitter than Charley Keller of Newark who is supposed to burn up the American league for the Yanks next season. . . .

Dixie Howell, who did his stuff in the Rose Bowl for Alabama, is head man at Arizona Teachers college and doing all right. . . .

NOW just why was it Louisiana State (which had first crack at him) didn't want this Kellog who is threatening to go places for Tulane? . . . With Charlie Dressen out of the picture, temporarily at least, Del Baker of the Tigers gets the call as the premier signal swiper of the majors . . . Incidentally, Detroit scribes say Baker did such a good job with the Tigers after Cochrane got the old heave-ho that he probably will be rewarded with a two-year contract.

Art Hilborn Blasts Out 675 Total In Club Handicap Loop

American Legion Quintet Again Accounts for High Team Total With 2969 Sticks.

OFF to a poor start in the early matches this season, Art Hilborn, one of the city's outstanding pinsters regained his 1937-38 form last night as he cracked the maples for a brilliant 675 total.

Rolling with the Optimusts in the Club handicap league Hilborn put together games of 224, 232 and 219 to compile one of the highest totals rolled at the Meder alleys this season.

Hilborn's string enabled the Optimists to reach the 2691 figures, which were good for a sweep over the Baku Grotto.

Team scoring honors were again annexed by the first place American Legion club, which featured a 1036 game in a 2969 total. Pete Grohol was the heavy hitter for the Legionnaires with a 655, which was manufactured from games of 224, 213 and 218. Brig Young and Earl Robertson contributed scores of 603 and 602, but the Legionnaires were unable to beat the Mansfield Savings Bank team handicap and dropped a pair of tilts

The Liederkranz club also found the alleys to its liking as it came through with a 2776 count and a couple of victories over the Mansfield Athletic club

Reed of the New Method Laundry picked up a 586 total but his team dropped three to the Goodrich Tires. The Hecht and Casey Coals registered their first wins of the season as they toppled The News-Journals twice with Minard high with a 529. The Coals had a 937 game

Tygers Seek First Win In New Sandusky Series

Men of Murphy Face Toughest Streak Team Since 1935 In Lake City Next Saturday.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor

ONE of the major rivalries on the Mansfield high school pigskin schedule will be renewed over on the Lake Erie shores Saturday when Coach Russ Murphy's Tygers engage Bob Whittaker's Blue Streaks of Sandusky

While the series has not been in existence long enough to gather any great amount of tradition, it has already developed into a heated rivalry as the assemblage at Saturday's meeting should prove.

It has not been a successful relationship for Mansfield as far as victories are concerned, but it has paid dividends at the gate, which, after all, tells the tale.

The Tygers have yet to win their first game since the rivalry was renewed four years ago After the first year of the new series, the Men of Murphy more than held their own with the Blue Streaks, but the score always favored the Sanduskians.

Not In The Books.

For instance, it was not in the books for Sandusky to beat the Tygers last year, but it did. A pass defeated the team that held Massillon to a 6 to 6 tie in the fourth period.

This year Mansfield victory prospects do not appear as bright as they did for the last two meetings. This may be a good omen as the favorite came through only once since the resumption of the series in 1935. That was in the first year when the Blue Streaks possesed such stellar performers as Krueger and the Whittaker brothers.

Murphy has scouted the Streaks personally, and regards the edition as the strongest produced at Sandusky since the undefeated 1935 aggregation.

Only two lettermen were lost to Sandusky through graduation last June, and experience will be all on the Streaks' side Saturday There will be little difference in weight, we understand, but whatever edge speed gives a team will also favor the Streaks.

While the Tygers have been playing inconsistent ball, the Sanduskians have been turning out steady performances The only blot on the Streaks' record is a scoreless tie with Elyria, and Whittaker's pigskin chasers were not outplayed in this appearance

The Streaks gave Murphy a sample of their power Friday night when they rolled to a 65 to 0 victory over Tiffin Junior Order It is admitted that the Tiffin team does not rate with the upper bracket clubs in the Ohio, but the manner in which the Streaks punched over touchdown after touchdown with apparent ease increased Murphy's fears not a little

Defensively, Sandusky has few peers in Ohio scholastic circles, judging from the records, and it packs power and deception on the attack, both on the ground and in the air

Allow One Score.

The only touchdown scored against Sandusky this season was registered by Cleveland Collinwood against a reserve lineup. Against the varsity forward wall, Collinwood was helpless. Elyria, which boasts of a better than average offense, was unable to dent the Sandusky line, neither was Toledo Waite. Tiffin Junior Order never had a chance to test the Streaks' defense.

This all sums up to a lot of trouble for the Tygers Saturday, but they are going about their work at Stadium field this week with the idea of winning, and they may do it, too

Madison Attempts Comeback Friday.

THEIR hopes for another undefeated season killed by Mt. Vernon, Madison high school gridsters are back at work to make amends for the defeat at the expense of Upper Sandusky under the Rams' bulbs Friday.

Madison lost a tough ball game to the Jackets, and if the breaks had been more evenly divided, Coach Al Fendrick's machine might have manufactured a victory.

The Rams threatened seriously four times, twice from within the hosts' 10, but the touted offense that netted them 155 points in three games never asserted itself. Two of the touchdown drives were halted by interceptions, while another opportunity was stopped by a great defensive stand by Mt. Vernon

The other scoring chance was lost because of a poorly marked field. The end zone was not diagonally marked, we are told and once Capt. Joe Miller carried the ball across the five figuring he was in touchdown territory Mt. Vernon took the ball on the two.

A touchdown at this point might have changed the entire ball game, and the Rams might have been returned the victors instead of the Jackets.

However despite the defeat, Madison performed in an admirable fashion, and did not deserve to lose as badly as it did A blocked punt enabled the Jackets to score the touchdown that decided the issue

New Faces Sought To Bolster Cubs

CHICAGO — (AP) — New faces, plenty of them, will be around when the Chicago Cubs take the field next year, says Manager Gabby Hartnett.

There is little doubt the Cubs would like to have Joe "Ducky" Medwick, a power in the St. Louis Cardinal attack and rumors already were out that the Cubs would make a serious bid for the slugging outfielder. And if trades or money will not bring Medwick, reports had the Cubs ready to shift to Johnny Mize, another Card power unit.

Hartnett wasn't sure of how or where he would get the power, but he was desperate enough after the Cubs' world series showing to cry "I'll trade anybody except Stan Hack, Bill Lee, Clay Bryant and Dizzy Dean."

Alliance Star Leads Scorers

Hume Runs Total to 102 on Sixteenth Birthday.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Hillis Hume, scintillating signal-caller of the Alliance Aviators, chalked up four touchdowns Friday in eight minutes to run his four-game total to 102 points, giving him a strangle hold on first place in Ohio's high school football individual scoring race

Hume, in addition to celebrating his 16th birthday with the quartet of six-pointers, tossed a pass for another, and held the ball for three points after touchdown in the crowded eight minutes After he left the game, Alliance subs went on to beat Youngstown Woodrow Wilson, 46 to 6.

The star ball-toter made runs of 40, 25, 25 and 26 yards for his touchdowns. Here's how the scoring leaders in the scholastic parade stack up:

LEO DUROCHER BELIEVED SLATED FOR BOILY'S JOB

NEW YORK—(AP)—While Larry MacPhail wouldn't give any hints as to his choice of a successor for Burleigh Grimes when he finally made the formal announcement that "Boiling Boily" wouldn't be retained as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, the odds favor Leo Durocher. MacPhail listed the names of five candidates. Durocher, Jimmy Wilson, Charlie Dressen, Frankie Frisch and Bill Killefer.

AIRCRAFTS SOAR AS POWERS HIKE ARMS PROGRAMS

List Leaders Unable to Hurdle Profit-Taking Barriers; Foreign Mart Listless.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Aircrafts and a few specialties managed to work a bit higher in today's stock market but many leaders again were unable to surmount profit-taking barriers.

Backwardness of U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors and Chrysler induced some selling in other departments, although this was rather well absorbed in most cases.

Increasing armament programs of world powers gave a lift to Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft and Sperry.

Coppers did nothing notwithstanding the export rate crossed the 11-cent-a-pound level. A cut of $4 a ton in motor car steel by major companies failed to buoy the auto group.

Bonds were uneven and commodities steady. Foreign securities markets were listless.

Noted were forecasts that railroad freight loadings probably would reach a peak of 750,000 this fall, with the posibility that, if heavy industry activities pick up according to recovery hopes, shipments might touch the 800,000 mark by next spring.

Among automotive developments was the estimate of the Automobile Manufacturers' association placing September factory sales of passenger cars and trucks at 85,220 units against 96,936 in August and 175,630 in September last year. The drop from August was attributed partly to change-over interruptions for new 1939 models.

George W. Bibbs, chairman of the Richland county colored Republican executive committee, presided as chairman at the rally.

BLAST AT LINDY DRAWS RETORT

naut and gliding expert who was killed after having made 2,000 successful glider flights.

The article on which the letter of the Soviet airmen was based appeared in the publication "The Week." It asserted that information used by the cabinet during the Czechoslovak crisis, and which was instrumental in swinging younger members to the view of the cabinet element which favored peace at almost any price, originated with Lindbergh. It said that Lindbergh as a guest of Lady Astor said that the German air force could defeat the combined British, French, Russian and Czechoslovak forces.

"Members of the Cliveden set saw in this statement an opportunity too good to miss and started the ball rolling in Tory circles," said The Week.

Cliveden is Viscount Astor's estate near London, and Labor party and Communist circles allege that the people who meet there, the 'Cliveden set," are pro-Nazi, and have influenced high members of the government.

Even more interest was shown here in a statement first made in The Week, and repeated in the letter of the Soviet airmen denouncing Lindbergh, that authorities in London and Paris had information that the Russian air fleet was equal if not superior to the combined German and Japanese air force.

Unofficial estimates made in Moscow place the strength of the Russian air force as between 4,000 and 5,000 planes, and list it as stronger than Germany's numerically.

BERLIN —(U.P.)— Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at the Tempelhof airdrome here today at 3:05 p. m. (9:05 a. m. EST) from Rotterdam, The Netherlands.

A United Press correspondent informed Lindbergh of the letter published by the Russian newspaper Pravada charging that Lindberg was a Fascist sympathizer and that he had belittled the Soviet air force.

"I have nothing to say," Lindbergh replied.

OHIOAN HELD IN JAIL BY NAZIS

Arrested as Friend of Czech Leader, Released 16 Hours Later.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Relatives of Miss Isabelle Ziegler, 34, of Columbus, learned today that she had been held for 16 hours in Sudeten German jail for being "a close friend and accomplice" of Dr. Hans Leister, Czechoslovakian leader in the Elbogen district.

L. C. Ziegler, her father, learned that she was released because of "insufficient evidence."

Miss Ziegler is correspondent for the Richmond, Va., News Leader. She was graduated from Ohio State university in 1923.

man Nazi commissioner for Austria, assumed charge of the investigation here and was reported to have ordered that an example was to be made of the men who, on Friday and Saturday nights, rioted before the cathedral, invaded the palace of Cardinal Innitzer, archbishop of Vienna, and burned a crucifix, a painting of the Madonna and prayer books.

It was understood that several dozen suspects already were under arrest.

Further, it was noticed that minor officials of the Nazi party, most of them dressed unobtrusively in civilian clothes, were guarding number of Vienna's churches, monasteries and cloisters. Buerckel was reported to have ordered this watch against any new outbreak.

Refugees Cause Concern In Prague.

PRAGUE—(U.P.)—Sixty thousand German refugees, crowded into this little republic whose borders were shrinking daily from cessions to Germany, Poland and Hungary, caused the government grave concern today.

They were both economic and political burdens. The government was hard pressed to provide for the fast-growing army of unemployed Czechs from the mining and industrial areas that the country had ceded. Furthermore, more than 1,000 of the refugees were hunted political fugitives from Austria, and their presence here might be a barrier to the future Czechoslovak policy of friendliness to Germany.

The refugees themselves were becoming frantic. The central committee of the German-Austrian refugee organization in Czechoslovakia, representing 10,000 persons, appealed yesterday to Sir Neil Malcolm, the League of Nations high commissioner for refugees, to find them asylum in other countries.

Germans Completely Occupy Sudeten Areas.

BERLIN—(INS)—German troops today were in complete occupation of the Sudetenland, and civil authorities headed by Konrad Henlein began the task of administering the former Czechoslovakian borderland as an integral part of the reich.

In sweeping into the sections delineated by the international committee in Berlin, it was admitted that the German army took over some predominantly Czech areas. It was asserted on behalf of the Germans, however, that those places had been deliberately populated by Czechs since the World war.

Henlein announced that Sudetenland will be divided into three parts, one to be joined to Ostmark (formerly Austria), another to Bavaria, and the third to constitute a sparate province.

Members of the British Legion, war veterans especially chosen for the task, passed through Germany today enroute to police doubtful areas pending plebiscites. They made the trip in hundreds even though doubt is beginning to be felt as to whether any plebiscites will be held.

SLAIN LISTENING TO HIS RADIO

81-Year-Old Pensioner Killed By Shot Through Window.

CHARDON—(U.P.)— Authorities today hunted the person who fired a rifle bullet through the window of the home of Decker R. Beardsley, 81-year-old state pensioner, killing him instantly.

Beardsley, a widower, was listening to his radio when he was slain. His body was found by a neighbor at East Claridon, three miles east of here.

Officers have received previous complaints against bullets being fired from automobiles in the vicinity.

"Obviously, Mr. Green and federation leaders are misinformed on some subjects and doubtless have been led astray in their judgments."

Federation Prepares Wage-Hour Report.

HOUSTON, Tex.—(AP)—American Federation of Labor convention delegates returned today to the scene of yesterday's tumultous debate over John L. Lewis' CIO, and labor peace to begin grinding out the remainder of their legislative and industrial program.

The resolutions committee indicated it was ready to report on suggested changes in the federal wage-hour law.

Also ready for convention action were reports dealing with activities of Labor's Non-Partisan league and demands of the Potters' union for removal of Reconstruction Finance corporation officials on the grounds they approved loans to employers paying sub-standard wages and refusing to bargain collectively.

The convention yesterday hurdled its most controversial issue —the federation's policy toward proposals for peace with the CIO —after nearly three hours of oratory that left the combatants almost hoarse and whispering.

In the end the delegates adopted, with only one dissenting vote, a resolutions committee report which recommended:

1—That the executive council carry on the battle against CIO dualism.

2—That the council stand ready "to respond to any genuine appeal for peace or any honorable and sincere opportunity to reunite the labor movement."

The committee report, however, boosted the price of peace.

It said there was no solution for the split until Lewis either is deprived of his power or vacates his leadership, and added that the A. F. of L. "cannot and will not make terms with dictatorship and Communist leadership."

The report said "the power and the arrogance and the over-weening pride of one man" was the paramount question in efforts to negotiate labor unity. The CIO was led, the report added, by a "fulminating Caesar with the doubtful and perhaps doubting help of his Prime Minister Machiavelli."

MAJOR VALUE OF PLANES SEEN AS WAR PREVENTIVE

They'd Help Win One, But Are Worth More in Keeping One From Getting Started.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — War's most terrifying weapon—the airplane—has become an instrument for peace.

Many military men are convinced that the spectre of thousands of bombing planes dealing death and destruction from the skies is a potent peace influence with the political leaders of the great powers.

For the leaders of all these powers, military observers assert, are fully aware that unrestricted aerial warfare might soon make a shambles of Europe's large cities—probably without deciding the outcome of the struggle.

Raids Stiffen Resistance.

Some military theorists, like the late General Douhet of the royal Italian air force, have predicted that sudden onslaughts by mighty air forces on centers of population and industry would quickly deliver the knockout punch to an enemy nation. They contend that well-executed and incessant bombing raids on large cities would conquer a country by shattering the morale of its people.

But most military experts, conceding that aerial attack may throw the civilian inhabitants of a city into temporary panic and destroy valuable property, are very skeptical of the military effectiveness of aerial war on non-combatants. They say the killing of women and children does not win wars—that the resentment tends to stiffen the resistance of survivors.

The experts say it is doubtful, however, that "any strictly military command" would order indiscriminate bombing of non-combatants. One practical reason is that planes are very expensive instruments of warfare—big bombers like the U. S. flying fortresses cost a quarter of a million dollars, and it is difficult to replace good pilots quickly.

Death Loss Would Drop.

So the losses which almost invariably result from air raids must be justified by some decisive effect on the outcome of the struggle. The main purpose of aircraft is to disable opposing planes and to cripple the enemy military machine by destroying munition plants, airplane factories, steel mills, supply depots, railroad centers and transportation arteries.

Such operations may involve large numbers of civilians but are not primarily directed against non-combatants. Military men say it is conceivable that some ardent patriots might demand air raids on purely civilian populations for terroristic effects.

But you can expect, wherever opposing air forces are anywhere near balance, immediate reprisals for the bombing of cities.

Military men say that while the death toll and property destruction might be appalling in some industrial centers, the loss of life would be a constantly decreasing ratio as people learned how to protect themselves by taking to bomb-proof shelters during raids.

Won't Win A War.

Although the biggest development in weapons since the World war has been the increase in fighting power and in numbers of aircraft, air officials admit that planse alone will not win a great war. They are still supplementary to the infantry and artillery.

Today's bombing planes can fly three times as fast as the 1918 plane, seven times as far, three times as high and with 10 times the load of explosives Bombers now have an average top speed better than 250 miles an hour and can carry 6,000 pounds of explosives. In addition to greatly improved machine guns, airplanes have a new weapon in the 37 millimeter gun—a small cannon.

Are Bombers Insurance AGAINST War?

Even planes like these powerful new U. S. bombers, say the experts, probably could not deliver a knockout punch in war—but they're a big force in preventing war.

anymore if we talk in terms of less than a billion dollars, but most of us have no idea how much money that is," he said "At the rate of a thousand dollars a day, it would take more than 2,000 years to save that much—but we don't worry so much about a debt of nearly 40 billion dollars."

He urged industrial men to study the attempts of the administration to regulate wages and working conditions, adding that "business and government don't mix and never will."

Candidates keep right on promising to make their administrations business-like, but the purpose of business is to make a profit while government is to protect our lives, property and freedom, he said.

"Stop being fooled by politicians' promises and help to nominate the candidates you know are best fitted to run the government," he advised "When the average person doesn't vote in the primary, he lets the politicians set up the slate of candidates, and after that the voter may just as well shut his eyes and vote either way," Dean Ayer said.

Members of the club last night voted to change the name of their organization to the Mansfield-Shelby Formen's club because of the large number of Shelby members

The meeting, first of the club's fall and winter program, followed a diner at Westbrook. Approximately 180 members attended. Music was furnished by the Ohio Brass company orchestra

Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, gave the invocation, and W. M. Weldon, jr, president of the club, was in charge of the session. The program was arranged by a committee headed by Jay Cairns of the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

CAKE WITH 21 CANDLES GOES TO MRS. ROOSEVELT, 54 TODAY

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt found it impossible today to escape any celebration of her 54th birthday anniversary.

Two parties were arranged in her honor, despite her theory that "the more you forget your birthdays as you grow older, the younger you stay."

The National Women's Press club invited her to a luncheon, and provided gifts of an orchid and a birthday cake with 21 candles. President Roosevelt, only other member of the family at the White House, personally directed preparations for the traditional household celebration tonight.

Mrs. Roosevelt, buoyant and cheerful, told her press conference yesterday that she expected her next year to be as busy, but no busier, than the last.

That will be a large order Days since her 53rd birthday anniversary have been packed with activities as a mother, as first lady, and as a lecturer and writer.

She saw her youngest son, John, married — the last of her five children to make a home of his own. She welcomed her eighth grandchild—Franklin D Roosevelt III. She flew to Seattle last Christmas when her daughter, Anna, was ill, and stayed at Rochester Minn, when her eldest son, James, underwent an operation.

From many quarters, the last year brought her honors and adulation. A Puerto Rico newspaper urged her nomination for president in 1940. New York University honored her for "distinguished public service." She was given 6,000 roses at a "mother-in-law" fete at Amarillo, Tex

'40 DEFICIT OF $3,000,000,000 LOOMS FOR U. S.

Roosevelt Aids Inform Him There's No Possibility of Balanced Budget Yet.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's next budget message to congress in January again will be written in red ink, with the 1940 fiscal year deficit expected to border on the $3,000,000,000 mark.

This was the tentative and unofficial forecast of high financial authorities today at the treasury plunged into the task of framing next year's taxation and budgetary program.

At a White House conference yesterday, Budget Director Daniel W. Bell is reported to have informed Mr. Roosevelt that there is no hope for a balanced budget by the end of June, 1940, even if business accelerates to a boom-time pace.

Even if relief outlays are slashed materially after next June, equalizing of income and outgo will be impossible since the government has made huge commitments of funds during the present fiscal year. A sizeable portion of these funds will not flow out of the treasury until after July 1, 1939.

Take Most Money.

Major items in this category are allocations for public works projects and expenditures for national defense. Battleship construction already authorized by congress will call for large sums over the next two years.

Attending the White House conference in addition to Bell were Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Assistant Secretary John Hanes. The meeting was described by Morgenthau as preliminary in nature during which the subjects of taxes and budget requirements were canvassed in generalities.

While neither Morganthau nor the other participants would go into details concerning the discussion, it is understood that no specific decision was reached on any specific tax measures.

Since it was the first time since the last session of congress that Mr. Roosevelt has discussed tax and budget matters with his fiscal aids, it is believed that Morgenthau merely outlined a tentative revenue program which has been under study at the treasury during the summer.

This program includes federal taxation of income of state and local securities issues, possible income tax revision, taxation of salaries of local government officials, renewal of processing taxes on agricultural products, and renewal of corporation taxes.

The entire schedule of corporation taxes terminates after 1939. While President Roosevelt, this spring, strongly advocated restoration of the undistributed profits tax to its original form, vigorous opposition to this proposal prevails among tax experts at the treasury and in Congress.

With business recovery moving forward steadily, there is a strong likelihood that Mr. Roosevelt will recede from this demand.

DOROTHY DEVOE BECOMES BRIDE OF A. H. KISS IN TIRO NUPTIALS

TIRO—Among the pretty weddings of the season was that solemnized at the Crouse Memorial Lutheran church of Tiro Saturday when Miss Dorothy Devoe, daughter of Mrs. Sherman Daugherty of Tiro, became the bride of Albert H. Kiss of Cleveland. Rev. Robert Miller performed the single ring service at 2 o'clock before an altar decorated with autumn flowers.

Before the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by the organist, Miss Edith McNutt of Tiro and Miss Alice Ingram of Cleveland, soloist.

The bride appeared in a cream satin brocaded gown, worn originally by Mrs. William Smith of Tiro. Her short veil was held in place by a band of orange blossoms. Roses and orchids composed her bouquet. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Attending the bride, the matron of honor, was her sister Mrs. Frank Myers of New York City. She wore a blue chiffon gown and carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bride's mother wor a burgundy velvet dress and a shoulder corsage of gardenies.

Floyd Forsyth, of Cleveland, the bride's uncle, gave the bride away. Frank Kiss, brother of the groom, served as best man. Ushering were Louis and Carl Kiss of Cleveland, brothers of the bridegroom and Joe Hutchinson of Pittsburgh, Pa., cousin of the bride.

The bride has been a teacher for the past three years in the Charles F. Brush high school in Cleveland. After attending Miami university, Oxford, she graduated from Kansas State Teachers' college.

This spring the bridegroom received his degree from Cleveland Law school after attending John Carroll and Ohio State universities. At present he is regional supervisor of the claims department of the Trinity Universal Insurance Co., of Dallas, Tex.

AIRLINES ACT ON SAFETY PLAN

Agree to New Regulation to Safeguard Planes From Winter Accidents.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO — The nation's airlines, determined to eliminate winter accidents, began operating today under an agreement designed to increase the safety margin during the cold weather flying season.

Spurred by records showing that most crashes occurred during the periods of difficult flying weather, the airlines reached the agreement yesterday.

The accord was drafted under powers granted by the new civil aeronautics authority. Its more important provisions were directed against competitive flying during adverse weather conditions.

Henceforth, all rival lines on a specified route will cancel scheduled trips over that route if the dispatches of one line decides weather conditions make flying dangerous.

The lines also agree to limit normal cruising speed to 550 horsepower per engine and to an absolute maximum of 600 horsepower in case of head winds or other delays. The limitation was designed to provide power reserve for emergencies and reduce wear on motors.

The agreement also provided for flights at heights that would insure safe clearance of the highest obstacles along a route on only one motor.

Pedestrian Learns How It Feels to Be 'Roped and Thrown'

William W. Bowden, circulation manager of The News-Journal, knows what it's like to be "roped and thrown."

It happened to him—and there wasn't a cowboy within miles.

As he stood at the corner of West Third and North Mulberry streets, just after dark, a truck went by. A length of rope dangled behind it. The rope whipped around Bowden's leg, threw him from his feet and the truck dragged him 30 feet down the street. His arm caught under the wheel of a parked car and the rope loosened, freeing him.

Bowden reported the accident to police today. He said the truck was owned by the Yellow Stripe Cab company.

He told police he obtained treatment for bruises and abrasions at the office of a physician.

Police said they had received no report of the accident from the company. At the time of the accident, it was reported, the driver was unaware of it, but was said to have been told of it later by a witness.

DEFIANT LORAIN SHERIFF FIRES THREE DEPUTIES

Discharges Aids Who Pressed Him to Resign Because of Slot Scandal.

BULLETIN

ELYRIA —(AP)— The defense rested in the reverberating bribery trial of five Lorain county slot machine operators today, after three deputy sheriffs were suspended and four of five bondsmen of Sheriff William F. Grall asked county commissioners to be relieved of their surety obligations.

(By Associated Press)

ELYRIA — Suspension of three deputy sheriffs by Lorain County Sheriff William F. Grall for alleged "insubordination" was disclosed today as the bribery trial of five slot machine operators was resumed in common pleas court here.

John Fulton, chief deputy, who with Emil Kubiski and John Judge, were suspended, said Grall notified them of his action by letter early today, after they had conferred with him last night. Fulton said he and his two fellow deputies had informed the sheriff there was "considerable sentiment in the county against him," and that many persons thought he should resign from office as a result of disclosures in last week's sessions of the trial.

The letters of suspension, Fulton said, accused all three of insubordination, and added:

"Reinstatement during the time I remain as sheriff will depend on your good behavior."

Named chief deputy to succeed Fulton was C. J. Cordy, a present deputy.

Circulates Petitions.

Meanwhile, William H. Jenne, Lorain county Democratic executive committeeman, declared today petitions for the recall of Grall would be circulated immediately.

The sheriff and former Chief Deputy William G. Smith testified last week that the admitted "slots" operators paid $2.50 a week on each machine in return for immunity from arrest, territory rights and other concessions.

Grall said he received approximately $3,000 from the ring as his share of the "pay-off."

Jenne said 4,300 signatures were necessary to take the ouster action into court. His petitions charged Grall who has refused to comply with county commissioners' request to resign, with malfeasance, misfeasance, nonfeasance and misconduct in office.

Common Pleas Judge Guy B. Findley adjourned the bribery trial yesterday because of the illness of 71-year-old David Crawford, sr, one of the defendants. On trial with him are David Crawford, jr. William Peer, Stanton Hobbs and Harry Ziegman.

The senior Crawford was expected to take the witness stand yesterday. Two physicians said he was in danger of a cardiac collapse and needed a day's rest. Dr. Paul W. Smith testified Crawford was "practically irrational from fear, worry and exhaustion."

TOO MUCH NOW

Drought Over In Disney, Town Suffers Miniature Flood.

DISNEY, Okla. — (AP) — It was tough when Disney was without water. It was just as tough when water came.

Short of supply since mid-July, residents left their faucets open constantly to catch every possible drop.

City engineers found a good flow, hooked it on without notice. The new water supply boomed into the mains, the faucets, the homes.

Disney suffered a miniature flood.

5 FROM COUNTY GIVEN PAROLES

Pair Convicted in Cutting and Manslaughter Cases Among 69 to Be Released.

Five prisoners sentenced from Richland county were among 69 inmates of the London prison farm who were granted paroles today by the Ohio parole board.

H. J. LaBarge, Shelby, who was sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary about a year ago after an attack on his wife, Bessie, with a knife, was granted a release, effective Nov. 15. His term was from one to 20 years for cutting with intent to wound.

Pose Wade, also of Shelby, who is serving a one-to-20-year term for manslaughter, will be freed Dec. 1, 1939. Wade was held responsible for the death of his son, Woodrow, 18, in an automobile accident, Sept. 8, 1937, near Shelby. Wade was driving the car which swerved and turned over in the highway. He was sentenced last fall.

Other Richland county prisoners who were granted paroles include Lorain Morris, possession of narcotics, to be released Nov. 15; Albert Walker, manslaughter, Nov. 15, and C. J. Brotherton, forgery, Dec. 1.

Morris was sentenced under a one-to-five-year term last November. Walker was sentenced March 21, 1935, and Brotherton, Sept. 12, 1936. Both for one-to-20 years.

Evangelist Says He Was Tarred, Feathered By Mob

MARIETTA —(AP)— Found suffering from shock, beside a highway, Joseph A. Dixon, 42-year-old evangelist, told State Highway Patrolman John Mundrake today that he was tarred and feathered by about a dozen men last night.

Dixon asserted that the gang broke up a revival meeting at nearby Mill Creek, drove him into the surrounding hill country, and beat and stripped him before applying the tar.

The evangelist, who said his home was in Madison, S. D., was conducting the revival in celebration of his marriage yesterday to 22-year-old Opan V. Hasley.

The couple was married over the objections of her father, Wesley Hasley, who preferred charges of misconduct against Dixon in the court of Justice of Peace N. E. Kidd. Justice Kidd dismissed the charges for lack of evidence.

Sheriff Arthur Mackey and Prosecuting Attorney William Summers began an investigation.

Offers Twins for Adoption by Rich Family

Joseph M. Mulcrane, jr., of New York, offered his twin daughters for adoption by some "rich family" which could give them a chance in life that their father, a former well-to-do engineer and musician who was forced to retire because of ill health, cannot provide. A dozen unnamed persons "bid" to adopt the girls, Patricia, pouring coffee for her father and Helene, lighting his cigaret.

TYPHOID KILLS BOY AS HEALTH EXPERTS PROBE CHURCH DINNER

(By United Press)

UNIONTOWN, Pa.—One death from typhoid fever was reported in Uniontown hospital today following an outbreak of the disease in at least two Fayette county communities.

Lloyd Weightman, jr., 10-year-old son of a Uniontown dentist, one of five typhoid fever patients in the hospital, succumbed this morning. He had been under treatment for two weeks.

The child was among the 300 persons who attended a church dinner at West Leisenring, Sept. 15, it was learned, and was one of the 20 or more persons stricken several days after the dinner.

State Health Officer J. G. Hemington refused to make a conclusive statement but said "it is very likely" that the outbreak of the disease in West Leisenring "was either from milk or water used at the church dinner."

His investigation revealed, he said, that some of the milk used at the dinner was raw milk.

At least 20 cases were reported in the West Leisenring district and all persons afflicted had attended the dinner. Meanwhile the village of High House reported six cases.

Hemington visited High House yesterday and closed a number of wells and took samples from other water supply sources to test them for typhoid germs. Hemington attributed the cases at High House to bad water and unsanitary conditions.

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

John C. Davis, Druggist

The world darkens at times for all of us, but it brightens more quickly for the person who has sound health, because such a person has the buoyance to regard misfortune as an experience rather than as a climax to life. The healthy person isn't stampeded by circumstances. Instead he has the courage to see straight through to the other side.

If your health and spirits are below par, so that life seems a weary struggle, instead of a good game, don't wait. Go to the best doctor you can find and have a thorough examination

If he finds a prescription necessary, be careful that you take it to a good druggist who has the reputation for accuracy and care in filling orders. There is more need for precaution than perhaps you realize.

CALLS DAIRYMEN IN SEWAGE PLAN

Mayor to Ask Their Help in Clearing Up Difficulties Caused by Milk Wastes.

Seeking to eliminate what has been cited as the chief cause for the inefficient operation of the city's sewage treatment plant, Mayor Claude M. Hunter today called for a meeting of Mansfield dairymen in his office Thursday night.

Acting on the recommendation of James R. Collier of Elyria, the city's sewage technician, Hunter arranged for the meeting to seek the co-operation of dairies in disposing of milk wastes in a manner other than dumping it into the sewers.

Hunter said the dairymen had agreed to "work out some plan."

Collier in a letter to the mayor last week outlined the difficulties which were jeopardizing the treatment process of sewage at the plant.

He said that approximately 800 gallons daily were dumped into the system within an hour's time causing an overload on the plant, and pointed out that milk strongly resists treatment and causes a septic condition in the sewage.

OWNING A HOME EASY UNDER FHA FINANCING PLAN

Income Should Be 4 or 5 Times Larger Than Monthly Payment to Retire Loan.

The simplicity of achieving home ownership under the FHA plan is emphasized in a new pamphlet just issued by the Federal Housing administration.

The first step in building or buying a home under the plan, the pamphlet points out, is for the borrower to decide how much he can afford to invest. Generally speaking, his income should be at least four or five times the amount of the monthly loan payment. In other words, the total home investment should not be more than two or two and one-half times the borrower's annual income.

The next step is to decide on the type of home best suited to his needs, including the number of rooms, location, etc. The Administration suggests the borrower talk things over with a local architect, builder, or real estate firm. In this manner he will receive practical suggestions that will help clarify his ideas.

When the rough plan and a tentative estimate is prepared, the borrower should then apply for a Federal Housing Administration insured mortgage at any approved lending institution. In this connection the Administration advises that the lender should be taken fully into the borrower's confidence and apprised of the amount of his income and his current expenses. It is necessary for the lender to have this information, it is pointed out, so that he can arrange payments within the borrower's means.

The amount of the loan, repayment period, charges, and other specific details of the transaction are matters to be arranged between the borrower and lender, but the lender must be guided by Federal Housing Administration limits—that is, up to 80 or 90 per cent of the appraised value of the property and up to 20 or in some cases 25 years for repayment, with top interest charges of 5 per cent plus one-fourth or one-half of 1 per cent for mortgage-insurance premium.

SAFETY TEST

Texas Propounds an 'SQ' for Automobile Drivers.

AUSTIN, Tex.—(U.P.)—The following questions have been propounded for an "SQ"—safety quotient—test by Texas state police. The driver who cannot answer truthfully "Yes" to 8 of the 10 will be branded a traffic menace.

Do you use proper arm signals when turning and stopping?

Do you always drive within legal speed limits?

Do you always refrain from passing other vehicles on hills and curves?

Do you bring your vehicle to a complete halt at "stop" signals?

Do you observe right-of-way rules at intersections?

Do you always park your vehicle so that it does not obstruct traffic?

Do you dim your lights at night for approaching vehicles?

Do you always drive on the right side, not too near the middle stripe?

Do you regularly inspect light and other mechanical parts of your vehicle?

Do you drive in the same manner under supervision of a traffic officer as at other times?

CANDY USED TO TRAP WOOD RATS

Rodents Spurn Cheese But Really Have Sweet Tooth.

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(INS)—A pack of ordinary wood rats in nearby Mark West developed a taste for "finer things" and refused to be baited by anything but choice chocolate creams.

Ed Bremner, county agriculture commissioner, reported that a woman resident of the small Senora farming community experimented with several savory rodent delicacies — namely four flavors of cheese.

One day, however, they upset a candy box and ravaged the entire contents of chocolate creams.

Now the daily applications of poison to the comparatively expensive bait, she is slowly exterminating the rodents.

Declares Tiffs Vital for Happy Life of Marriage

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Couples married for 30 or 40 years who claim they never had an argument are either "morons or liars" in the opinion of Rev. W. Hamilton Auerbach, Philadelphia rector.

"The most positive evidence of a good and successful marriage," asserted Dr. Auerbach, " is considerable disagreement. A good wife keeps her husband alert and alive by disagreeing with him constantly.

When disagreements do occur, the clergyman advises couples to consult a minister or a psychiatrist, instead of parents or lawyers. The latter, he declared, do not "look on marital problems impersonally."

Dr. Auerbach warned against "excessive saving by married people." Such action, he said, prevents them from enjoying the present while worrying about the future.

SHIFTS KNOX

Security Board Adds County to Mansfield District.

Knox county today had been added to the six-county area now served by the Mansfield field office of the Social Security board, R. G. Mish, district manager, announced.

Heretofore, social security account numbers and money payments under the old age insurance plan have been handled for this county by the Columbus office.

Mish said the change had been made in the "interest of economy and efficiency" after a survey had indicated service for Knox county residents would be improved as the result of the change.

Besides Knox county, the Mansfield office also serves Wyandot, Marion, Morrow, Crawford, Richland and Ashland counties.

FLOOR COVERING

Pleasing effects in interiors can be had by having the floor coverings contrast rather than compliment the wall coloring.

Light and cheerful atmosphere is created in a room with a soft-toned, light walls by use of a dark floor covering of the same basic color.

PLUMBING PLAN IN THREE PARTS

Important Features of Ideal System Outlined So as to Avoid Defects.

A plumbing system is divided into three parts, all of approximately equal importance.

To the layman the fixtures are better known and are items that come in for first consideration when building a house or when contemplating the modernization of an existing house. But even the finest of fixtures cannot render the service they are capable of unless the supply and waste piping are correctly installed and adequate for the needs of the system.

Defects in supply piping frequently will result in an inadequate supply of water at fixtures, and defective waste piping will often cause a stoppage at the fixtures.

In designing a plumbing system for a new house the plumber will first total the water consumption for all fixtures. The capacity of piping should be sufficient to allow the use of all fixtures simultaneously, otherwise some of the faucets will give off only a discouraging dribble when heavy use is being made of water. To guard against this, pipe capacity should exceed the all-fixture volume.

Hidden piping should be of highest grade, as it is costly to replace or repair. In the usual two-story house there is approximately 300 feet of such piping concealed in walls and under flooring. Obviously it pays to have this concealed part of the plumbing system of the best available quality.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1938.

The more civilized men get, the more laws they need to make them behave.

It's natural to laugh at the idea of Adolf Hitler demanding "reparation" from the Czechs, but it's no joke.

Private debtors don't feel so bad about their own debts when they think how much more governments owe. But they ought to feel worse, because they have to pay that, too.

Good Citizens.

FOR SOME TIME New York City has awarded medals for heroism or distinguished public service to members of the police and fire departments. Now it is proposed to include all city employes of whatever department.

It isn't difficult to find deserving persons, either. For example, there is the health department inspector who went to a farm and lay in the grass all night watching to catch a farmer watering milk with a garden hose. Another is an obscure clerk who worked out an efficient new office routine which saves the city $1,200 a year.

Other previously unsung heroes are a deck hand who rescued a woman from drowning in the bay and a fire department dispatcher who cut red tape to send fire-fighting apparatus across a new bridge before its formal opening to traffic.

There must be many intelligent public servants, who use their brains for the community's good, but who go unrecognized and unrewarded. It would be good for lazy and indifferent citizens to hear more about them and to join in public appreciation of them.

Baseball Sanity.

BASEBALL fans need not feel insulted because a psychologist calls them "psychopeds," for most people seem to be in the same group. The term applies only to "a person who has never entirely outgrown his capacity for adolescent enthusiasms and rivalries, a person who lets his emotions run away with him—in his domestic and political life as well as in the sphere of sports."

During the baseball season, and in the World Series games that are its climax, most Americans are psychopeds. It is a good thing, too. The psychologist goes on to explain that we let off a lot of surplus steam in rooting for the favorite team, calling the umpire names, fighting the fans of the other team, and raising the roof generally. After an afternoon of such complete self-expression, a fan becomes a more reasonable and amiable person that he would have been without it.

In Central Europe, it should be noted, the people do not have baseball or any equivalent emotional safety valves. They turn their adolescent enthusiasms into more harmful channels, such as supporting dictators, cherishing racial antagonisms, and settling their political disagreements with bullets, bombs and concentration camps.

Big Money for Pension Plan Promoters.

PEOPLE who have wondered at the rapid spread of pension schemes of one sort and another—each involving collection of dues to pay salaries and expenses of promoters and commissions to organizers—will gain enlightenment from an article in the current issue of Collier's, which reveals collections of $2,400 a day from old people in California, lured by promises of $30-every-Thursday.

According to this article, one of the principal promoters of the $30-every-Thursday pension scheme was convicted in federal court in 1934 of using the mails to defraud, through promotion of a fake hair restorer.

Two hundred thousand Californians are reported to have joined the movement, with membership increasing a couple of thousand a day. Dues are a cent a day, payable 30 cents a month in advance, and in addition, booklets and insignia are being sold by the tens of thousands—each returning a profit to the promoters.

With almost unlimited money-making possibilities in a scheme which attracts small, regular contributions from hundreds of thousands of people, and with unscrupulous promoters willing to prey on the gullibility of poor old people who cannot understand that impossibilities are being promised, it is easy to understand how such "movements" quickly spread from California into other states.

Relatives and friends of old people who are being victimized into paying tribute in some one or more of these fantastic pension schemes might well advise them save their scant funds for purchase of things they need, instead of contributing to the enrichment of unscrupulous promoters of so-called "plans."

Anti-Trust Enforcement.

ALSOP and Kintner, in their syndicated column of news comment, have been having a little fun with Thurman W. Arnold, author of "The Folklore of Capitalism," in his present capacity as assistant attorney-general and trust-buster. He is a new type in public life and seems to lend himself readily to entertainment.

But they conclude that his odd schemes and whimsicalities shouldn't obscure his value as a public servant—that he is trying to put over the best joke he can think of, "enforcement of the anti-trust laws for the first time in American history."

They credit that bit of practical humor with a chance of success, for a surprising reason. Although he is upsetting to some industries, they say, "he gets along very well with industrialists."

That is, apparently, because he is frank with them. He tells them he wants to enforce the law, and also tells them exactly what the law is, so that they can work the problem out together.

It appears that a big majority of business men really want to observe the law, and will do so if they understand it clearly.

A group of scientists and educators are starting a study of the effects of alcohol on society and the individual. Others may gain enlightenment by observing the erstwhile youthful boozers who have now reached middle age.

"First we had news," says a reader, "then we had columnists to interpret the news, and all we need now is somebody to interpret the columnists." Oh, the editorial writers do that.

Keeping Step

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Well, here we are again with the Supreme Court on our hands, including Justice Black.

Insiders say that whatever the members may think of Justice Black's technique in writing majority decisions, they are increasingly wary of his dissents.

When a justice is assigned to write a decision of the court, the wording must satisfy all members of the majority before it is released. But a justice can write a dissent as he pleases.

In one instance, Justice Black held that federal courts were bound to accept interpretations of state courts as to the common law. Already the federal courts are obligated to accept the interpretation placed by state courts on state laws, regardless of what federal opinion may be. The importance attaching to his common law decision is that shortly after Black issued his dissenting opinion, the court came around to accept his view, overruling a locker full of older decisions.

* * *

Black Attracts Tourists.

His associates knew at the time of his appointment that Black had a keen mind with which to acquire judicial knowledge.

Tourists still find Justice Black the greatest attraction.

"Which one is Justice Black?" they ask the guide, as they are ushered into the side-chambers from which they may view the court.

He sits on the extreme right wing of the court, in spite of any leftish economic predilections he may have.

As court began its eight months session observers noted no change in the health of any. Brandeis, past 81, is bronzed and chipper. Observers believe he enjoys court session perhaps more keenly than any. He is never absent from even the briefest routine sessions save when his physician puts him to bed because of a cold.

* * *

McReynolds Is Different.

Justice McReynolds, conservative, evidences least enjoyment of any in the sessions. He rarely attends short, routine sessions and occasionally is late at other sessions, although his health is good. He failed to show up at the opening session this term and immediately a rumor started that he remained away in "dissent" against the eulogy for the late liberal Justice Cardozo given by Chief Justice Hughes.

But that was a fumble-guess. McReynolds highly admired Cardozo, in spite of their diverging philosophies. As on other occasions, it was only a 15-minute session which he considered would not justify him leaving home, where he does his work.

McReynolds doesn't neglect his work, but he displays less enthusiasm for court business than when he was one of the dominant conservative group. Since the court has gone liberal, he is one of the minority.

Most regular attendant, because his health is good, because he enjoys his job, and because he is chief justice, is Mr. Hughes.

"UNFINISHED BUSINESS"

Chamberlain Proves His Nerve

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"This man Chamberlain!" observed one of our Washington statesmen the other day. "Will history make him a hero or a villain?" We shan't know, this guesser continued, until after the sequel to the Czech deal has been written. Not much of an answer, I'd say. Whatever history's verdict may be, it certainly will not be to the effect that British Premier Neville Chamberlain was a villian. It may record him as a dumbbell. However, he hasn't a drop of villiany in his composition. If he's blundered, assuredly he did so well-meaningly. On the opposite hand, even if his policy turns out 100 per cent favorably, I doubt that he will go down to posterity as a hero. He hasn't the spectacularity ever to classify heroically.

He does have nerve. This will be disputed by critics who maintain that he showed a lack of it, by "surrendering," as they express it, to Hitler. Nevertheless, he showed plenty of it by doing as he thought best, regardless of a deal of adverse public opinion.

The question isn't, "Is he a hero or a villain?" The question is, "Was his judgment good?"

History's voice must, indeed, be awaited on that issue.

* * *

Aristocratic Phooey!

Neville Chamberlain has been considerably misrepresented in the descriptions of him published in America.

He's been represented as a first degree aristocrat. He isn't one. I had several personal contacts with him, as an American news correspondent in early World war days, when he was Lord Mayor of Birmingham.

Neville is what is known in England as an "iron master." Here we'd call him a "steel magnate." He's very rich, yes. All the same he always has been in "trade." That marks him as a "bourgeois" — middle classer — which is almost worse than being a workingman.

It's true that Neville inherited his money, which is not as bad, aristocratically speaking, as if he had made it himself.

At that, though, he's an accident.

The late Joseph Chamberlain, his father, was the accumulator of the initial fortune. He became a statesman of formidable proportions. Still, he had the "trade" aroma clinging around him. He figured that his oldest son, Austen, was the chap to succeed him and become a REAL aristocrat.

Neville, he calculated, was to become the family's business man, keeping the Chamberlain aristocracy in the foreground.

* * *

Fate and Its Workings.

By some strange freak of fate, Neville is the bird who has to bear the aristocratic burden.

He has to wear a frock coat and a plug hat and act "tony."

He isn't adapted to it. When I saw him, in World war times, he was middling informal.

Debating diplomatic issues (which he knows nothing about), I'm prepared to believe that Neville is at a disadvantage at centers like Munich.

But when it comes to world economics?

Neville Chamberlain has got some education.

Has a bonehead like Hitler got any?

Health Advice

Infection of Athletic Injuries.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A MEDICAL FRIEND of mine who was playing golf with me said at the end of the game, "I have sprained my sacro-iliac joint." The next morning I woke up with a pain in my back, evidently also a sprained sacro-iliac. When I told my friend that I had the same thing he had he said, "Yes, and let me tell you something. That is not a sprained sacro-iliac joint. I just said that to conform to general opinion. That is an infection. You mark my words—half the men in the locker house of that golf club will have a backache over the sacro-iliac region within the next two weeks."

And lo and behold! It was just as he said. There was an epidemic of sacro-iliac strains. So it does look as if this condition is partly a sprain or wrench on which an inflammation of the muscle is superimposed. The condition goes away in a week or two, and the only treatment necessary is rest and heat applications.

Same Sort of Thing.

"Tennis elbow" and "golf elbow" are much the same sort of thing. Tennis elbow was described by a Boston physician who had one. He found one morning after he had played several sets the afternoon before, that he had a pain on the outer side of his elbow. It hurt him to make such motions as holding a glass of water. He could not play tennis because he could not hold the racquet tightly enough.

He thought at first that it was a torn tendon or torn muscle or a little chip pulled off the bone, but the x-ray did not show this. Finale he decided to have a surgical operation on it. This was done under local anesthesia, so the doctor himself could look in and see what was the matter. What they found was an infected bursa or sac under the muscle. When this was removed, recovery was prompt.

It is probable that many of these things we think are injuries are really infections. Tennis and golf elbows get well by themselves without so heroic a treatment as a surgical operation, but they should be rested and treated with respect. If attempt is made to use them, permanent crippling may result.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

E. M..: "I had infantile paralysis when I was seven years old, and have fully recovered except for a slight limp. I have been contemplating amrriage and have been assured by several doctors that there is no chance of passing this on to my children. I believe a discussion of this would go a long way towards clearing up the prejudice of the average person. We victims of this condition have enough competition, without having the average person under false impressions."

Answer: I thoroughly agree and am glad to give space which might help to clear up such wrong impressions. Infantile paralysis cannot possibly be transmitted by heredity to children.

Americanism Courses Installed To Combat Radical 'Educators'

A PRACTICAL approach to the problem of protecting our youth against radical and subversive propaganda is just announced by Seton Hall college, a Roman Catholic institution at South Orange, N. J., whose president has ruled that all students be required to take up four-year courses in Americanism as a requisite for graduation. Among the stated reasons for this action are:

1. The American education system should be committed to the democracy upon which it was founded, instead of being shot through with radicalism under the guise of liberalism. By this I mean that state-subsidized institutions all through the country are maintained by taxpayers' money, but are used by faculty members to spread anti-Americanism.

2. Every one is tired of hearing speeches about the dangers of Communism and Fascism and wants to see something done about them.

3. It is a matter of civic pride and obligation to educate youth to best serve his fellow man, to follow in the strong and steady footsteps set by our forefathers.

This is a sensible technique for meeting a situation which has aroused a great deal of indignation and concern among parents who have resented their sons and daughters indoctrined by radically-inclined instructors.

To restrict the exposition of radical philosophies of government and human relationships is futile, for the doctrines inveighed against then take on all the traditional allure of forbidden fruit. Neither is this the American way. But to counteract insidious propaganda, designed to corrupt immature minds with liberal doses of tried and true Americanism is not only justifiable, but should prove an effectual antidote.

There is no virtue in carrying the laudible principle of free speech to such lengths as to permit the democracy's enemies a monopoly on the attention of eager and receptive young minds.—Columbus Dispatch.

A Farmer's Diary

Autumn Morning.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WALKED out upon the dewy grass just as the first streaks of dawn began to show upon the eastern sky. I had some green string beans to pick for market.

The air was cool and clear, with that tang that is so pleasant, even though it chills the hands and face. Down in the hollow of the meadow, I saw a soft white covering upon the grass and leaves that sparkled dimly in the changing light. The first frost of our lovely autumn nights had spread about the streams and lowlands.

I watched the pearly dewdrops gather and reflect the sky. The eastern windows of our house showed crimson, changing constantly to more animated colors. Great streaks of purple rose above the trees. Some little clouds floated in a glowing sea of gold.

The upper rim of the sun peeped across the fresh, cool, sleeping earth, and soon the level beams reached out their welcome fingers and touched the fields and woodlands with warmth and loveliness. All was quiet except the rooster's crow, the distant barking of a dog, and the lively chatter of a gray squirrel hidden in the nearby hickory tree. I wondered if the song sparrow, the robin and the meadowlark had left.

I pulled the cool, wet bean stalks far apart and plucked the long, tender green pods until my moistened hands and fingers ached with cold. When my back was tired, I got upon my knees and felt the damp earth at closer range. It had the mouldy smell of rotting turf. I took one clod and pulverised it in my hand, and watched the dark fine particles drop between my fingers.

Then the first lark sang . . . another . . . many more. The land about sent forth a chorus of celestial song. My spirits rose, as they always do at the lilt of that sweet, high note, and in my heart I blessed the lowly task of picking beans, for it had brought the beauty of the autumn morning into my life.

Listen, World!

Love—What Is It?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

Love doesn't "just happen." It is not a miraculous visitation—a superhuman seizure an instantaneous explosion.

Love starts happening when we start living—long before we find the loved one. Love is an answer—love is many answers. Love is the answer to countless fears, fevers and frustrations, hopes and hungers, ecstacies and surrenders. Love is the answer to all we are—and aren't; have achieved—and haven't.

Love—the conscious awakening—comes when we are ready for it to come. But it is a long time getting ready.

We say "I love!" And we think these two words always mean the same thing. No matter how we may differ in character, in intelligence, in taste and experience, we think that "love" is always the same thing . . . a beautiful and noble thing . . . always deserving reverence . . . always meriting gratitude.

* * *

But that's idiotic. Love isn't always the same thing. Love is never the same thing—not even in the same person! Love is not necessarily beautiful, or noble; or even excusable. Love is as good as the individual who fels it—and no better. Love is—what-are-you and what-have-you?

Love may be a prayer—a song—a blessing. Or it may be a coward's hide-away . . . an egotist's sounding board . . . a sentimental alibi . . . a glutton's greedy snatch. Love is sometimes a glorious partnership—but, far oftener, a habit which we are too lazy or timid to break. And sometimes a drawn-out spite contest.

Jealousy has no place in love—no justification. Nor has meddling, nor possessive domineering. These things are cancerous growths on the body of love which will surely destroy it. "Charity covers a multitude of sins"—but love camouflages a whole hell full.

Real love is the noblest opportunity in life, the most gallant adventure, the most consecrated service, the sweetest comfort . . . our closest pact with God. But most of us expect it to be a toe-dance with jazz accompaniment, or a continuous solo broadcast. And quit when we find it isn't.

There is no discipline as stern as the discipline of love, nor isolation as complete, no monotony as wearing, no sacrifice is cruel.

It is the most civilized of all our performances. And because it is, the best of us can work at it but for short periods only. But work at it we must, if we would achieve it.

We rush to each other in a great flame of longing, believing that all will be well if we only keep this fire alight. Yet, strangely, the deepest, strongest and most lasting bonds of love are achieved in those hours when the heart is quite cool and only the mind carries on . . . in hours, even, when we actually dislike each other and keep faith by conscious painful effort!

* * *

Love is not "the greatest thing in life." Life is the greatest thing in life. Beware of love that cries that "life is well lost"—and of a "perfectly happy" marriage that shuts life away. And therein lies that certain test of love which we are always craving. Does love make you braver, more honest, more eager to live? Does it make you willing to face those challenges you have hitherto dodged—accept those burdens you have hitherto shirked?

And will the loved one face those challenges with you, share those burdens, and despise you if you try to escape? Then it is love—REALLY! And worth anything it costs.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

Answer Me This.

I'D LIKE to know this—
Am I a man or a mouse?
How solid is this character I carry around with me?
Or am I profoundly affected—is it merely a superficial influence they have upon me?
When I'm with a "fine character" I want to be as fine as he.
I want to be good, as he is good.
I want to be decent to everybody, sharing what I have, sacrificing as he does, speaking gently of all my neighbors, suppressing my impulse to gossip, living simply, wisely, nobly.
Though I may suspect that I'll never be able to follow his example—
Though I fear this old dog may be unable to learn many new tricks—
Nevertheless I feel that deep desire to be better than I have ever been.

But tomorrow I'll spend the day with another fellow.
A tough egg—I mean a tough-minded individual—who goes his own way and cares little for what you think or I think or anybody else thinks.
Who has gusto and daring and a heedless selfishness. . . . A generous fellow, of course, who'll give you his shirt off his back but who may also take your last dollar and forget to bring it back.
A born adventurer, a live wire, a shocking fellow.

And when I'm with him, I wish I were like him. . . . I wish I had a thick skin, too. . . . I wish I were a bold adventurer, with an imaginary plume in my hat and flashing sword at my side, and a great air of devil-may-care about me.
I know I couldn't get away with it, but that's how I feel, just the same.

I'm not ashamed of this chameleon nature of mine. I'm curious about it. . . . Can a man be two kinds of human being in one shell?
Is this a special trait of mine—to have such a broad mind that you could drive a truck through it? Or is everybody, more or less, like me in this respect?
Sometimes I think one thing, sometimes I think another . . . And right now I'm confident that every one of us is all kinds of human being. We want to be good and trustworthy, we want to be tough and reckless.

We want to be everything, know everything, do everything, go everywhere . . . In our hearts the little "I" we know is not big enough for our powers or our dreams . . . And I think most of the people I know feel just as I do about life. They're two-faced, too.

Will YOU admit it?

A Candidate To Trust.

The satirist who made the statement that all is fair in love and war, would doubtless have included politics, if this modern institution had been in existence at that time. However, the strategic introduction, at the 11th hour, of an opposition candidate to run against Judge Charles W. Montgomery will cause no uneasiness in the precincts where Judge Montgomery is known personally.

Judge Montgomery has lived most of his life in the city of Newark, a city whose size makes it practically impossible to conceal dark chapters, if any, in one's career. Happily, in this case, no concealment has been necessary. Charles Montgomery's probity, his fine judgment, his honor, are unimpeachable. He is as kindly as he is intelligent; is thoroughly versed in legal matters; and has occupied with distinction the position for which he is up for re-election.

Charles Montgomery is not only a competent attorney and a fair-minded judge; he is also a gentleman whose uprightness is an integral part of his character. Such men are rare in politics, and when one is found he should be grappled to our hearts with hooks of steel.—Newark Advocate.

Plan Your Life.

Laws govern it, so make
A plan and work for all you wish,
Forethought for each day take.

And do not pin your faith to luck,
That is a sorry way
To try for prizes of this world.
Work for them day by day.

Once in a million years luck might
Reward you. Do not trust
To it, but plan, decide this thing,
That work for it you must.

Nation Joins In 3rd Annual Observance of Retail Grocers Week

The attention of the nation is focused all week on the individual food merchants, with the opening of National Retail Grocers week. In every city, village, hamlet, and cross-road in the United States—everywhere that a grocery store may be found, consumers and producers are joining with the food trade in a gigantic demonstration in honor of the neighborhood grocer.

Several hundred thousand individual retail grocers who distribute two-thirds of all foods sold in the United States will greet consumers with public receptions, bargain parades, personal greetings, contests and a general festival activity. The program scheduled is designed to recognize the broader services that individual retail grocers have rendered to humanity.

"Open house" will be observed all week by grocers from coast to coast. Everyone has been invited to visit the grocery stores in this section—to get better acquainted with the individual food merchants who contribute so much to the general welfare of the community.

"It Pays to Know Your Grocer."

This is the third annual National Retail Grocers week. As in the past wide publicity will be given to the slogan, "It Pays to Know Your Grocer," the implication being that closer personal relations between the "man behind the counter" and the customer will be mutually beneficial

All week long representative grocers will be guests at various public functions to be staged in many parts of the country Civic and public leaders are joining in the tribute. Public proclamations have been issued lauding the grocer as a good citizen and a valuable asset to the community.

Contests for Children.

Various contests have been sponsored by the National Association of Retail Grocers as a feature of the event. The interest of girls of high school and preparatory school age is being invited by the Ideal Pantry contest. This contest consists of presenting in competition one's idea of the make-up of an ideal pantry stock for a home Large cash prizes will be paid to the winners Primarily, however, the contest is designed to interest girls in the household against the time when they will be maintaining a pantry on their own account.

Boys of high school and preparatory school age are invited to submit essays on "America's Most Famous Grocery Clerks" An assortment of one hundred and ten cash prizes will be awarded to the best essays submitted Complete details on contests for both boys and girls will be found on another page of this section

Stores Gaily Decorated.

Grocers everywhere are prepared to receive huge throngs of visitors throughout the week Local grocery stores will take on a carnival appearance throughout the week by the use of various types of colorful advertising material.

The celebration promises to be one of the most unusual in the history of the United States From morning until night throughout the week there will be demonstrations expressing good will and appreciation for the grocers and the job they are doing

Charles II of England went into the grocery business in a big way He withdrew the charter of the London grocers guild and conducted the food distribution of the city by himself. But not for long. He found he wasn't a very successful grocer and gave up.

Grocers' Envoy

Ralph A. Schad, above, is merchandise manager of the Independent Grocers' Institute of Mansfield, and is actively interested in maintaining the friendly relations between retailers and consumers, and in servicing the Square Deal Food Stores group. Offices of the organization are in the Richland Trust building. Schad was formerly police chief of Mansfield.

The average pioneer retail store was considered elaborate when it carried as many as sixteen imported articles and thirty or so local commodities.

Grocery Has Interesting History

The institution which we call the grocery store today is one of the most ancient of all commercial establishments which have developed in conjunction with human civilization.

While its inception is clouded in vagueness and the records of the existence of the neighborhood grocer do not penetrate more than a few thousand years before the time of Christ, deductions point to the existence of markets of this character from the time when neighboring hunters, farmers and herdsmen began the choice of specialized callings It is logical to believe that at first these specialists began trading with each other. But it is just as logical to believe that as each of the special vocations became habits of life, someone else assumed the task of intermediary in these transactions.

Research discloses that the Chaldeans were enthusiastic grocers and went so far as to develop weights and measures in the stabilization of their business.

Homer Makes Allusions.

Homer recorded incidents which indicated strongly the existence of what then answered for the grocery store, but refrained from going into details, possibly because the trade might not have been very respectable among the Greeks. The Spartans disdained to have any part in the food exchange and under the law the slaves were given this department of life to carry on

The Romans, however, were right in for more and better eating and it was during this period that the grocery developed into high standing. This was the result of a fondness for the pleasures of the table and the founders of the empire began early to expand the source of supplies.

Where, it is to be believed, the past of the grocery business consisted mostly of trading corn for geese or vegetables for goat meat and milk for fruit of the neighborhood, when the Romans really got under way they started to specialize in the art of eating with discrimination. Right here the foundations of the modern grocery store were laid.

Yearn for Better Food.

In fact the yearning for something more than hunks of meat, ground or whole cereals and fruit and vegetables probably was the seed of what later became organized international trade. Spices, preserved fruits, meats, flavors and what today we know as condiments were encouraged in the preparation of elaborate meals. Much of it came from other countries, and sometimes it took a war or two to stabilize the exchange of edibles.

The grocery business skyrocked—in volume and esteem. Bread, bacon, oil and wine were probably the fundamental grocery stocks. Bacon was developed as a table delicacy and under Valentinia III the consumption was nearly four million pounds a year at home; while other nations were educated in its use and gradually it was exported in vast amounts.

Pepper was a great grocers' special of the early Roman days and the retailer with a stock of it was fixed for life It was very expensive because it had to be brought overland from the Malabar coast of India Alaric's ransom of Rome was paid in the shape of 3,000 pounds of pepper.

WORD 'GROCER' DEFINED

The designation "grocer" as applied to the retail food purveyor is first found in recorded English in 1373 at London. Contemporary references also were to "grossours de vin," a wine merchant, and "groser of fysshe." The word was first applied to dealers who bought or sold "by the gross" and probably had its origin in France.

He's the 'Man of the Hour'

Know this friendly smile? You should recognize it, for it is the symbol of the smile that greets you whenever you buy a box of oatmeal, a dozen eggs or grapefruit for breakfast. In other words, it's the smile of the groceryman, whether he's at the neighborhood store or the big down town market. This week is Retail Grocers' Week and communities all over the country are paying tribute to the Man Behind the Counter who hands out a free smile with every grocery order.

JOHN E. ANGLE, CITY'S OLDEST GROCER, STARTED 57 YEARS AGO

John E Angle has passed out "groceries with a smile" longer than any other groceryman in Mansfield, and he's still behind the counter at 18 South Park street, only a few doors from where he started in the business in 1881.

But even before that—when he was little more than 10 years old—he began working behind the grocery counter. His father and brother owned and operated a grocery in Shippensburg, Pa., and when other boys were out playing, young John had to help "wait on trade."

Mr Angle was born within the roar of the first guns in the Civil war on June 18, 1861, and only a few miles from Gettysburg where the bloodiest battle of the war was to be fought

He came to Mansfield while still in his 'teens, in 1880, and worked at various jobs in order to get away from working in the family grocery. A cousin in Mansfield had married A. F. Remy, who was associated with his father, A W. Remy, in the retail grocery business on South Park street, where the Ohio Public Service company building now stands.

On a busy Saturday the Remys asked him to come into the store and help. He told them he'd help, just that one time, but that he didn't like the grocery business and wanted no part of it But he never left it after that first busy Saturday in September, 1881

He remained as clerk and a couple of years later went into partnership with the elder Remy when A. F. Remy left to launch the present wholesale grocery company which still bears his name and which he heads.

In 1893 he purchased the Remy interests in the grocery and has operated it since that time. He has moved only once At the end of 32 years in the same location the location was taken over by the Ohio Public Service company and the Angle grocery was moved to its present site

Among his interesting fund of reminiscences is that Mansfield had a population of 10,000 when he first started to work in the Remy grocery and there were about 15 groceries in the town The price of chickens in those days still makes him smile—they were 25 cents apiece regardless of size or age, and fresh fruits and vegetables were not considered grocery stock. No one had dreamed then of shipping such items from California or Florida, and people who wanted them raised them in season

Refrigeration cars, he pointed out, have played an important part in the evolution of the present, well-stocked food stores.

FOOD AS AN EDUCATOR

Because of the universal interest in things to eat, the sources of foods are utilized by some schools, in teaching geography, to impress the pupil with the names and locations of foreign countries according to the National Association of Retail Grocers Specially mounted maps with twine extensions indicate the relative position of America to the countries being studied. The experience of teachers shows that pupils remember best the countries in which their favorite foods are grown.

Grocer Works To Develop Community

It is almost impossible to determine the contribution of the grocer to the business and social life of the community. In fact it seldom occurs to anyone that the average individual food merchant differs from any other type of small business man until actual comparison is made.

Because he deals with the necessities of life the grocer is in contact with the family more frequently than any other type of business or professional man. It is only natural that such daily contacts usually ripens into deep friendship, so that regardless of where one travels in America, investigation will reveal that the grocer is intimate with more people than anyone else in the community

It is the individual grocer who is called on for advice or counsel concerning various family problems. When financial distress pinches the pocketbook he cheerfully continues the extension of credit. Countless thousands of families throughout the country can testify as to the friendship of the grocer in times of financial reverses

However, it is in the operation of his business that the individual retail grocer excels Being his own boss he can render the personalized service preferred by every housewife. If certain brands or varieties of products are sought by consumers it is the individual grocer who can and does go out of his way to cater to every personal whim in respect to food products.

Millions of housewives laud the time and energy saving delivery service of the individual grocer to purchasing food supplies it isn't necessary these days for a consumer to spend two or three hours in the midst of jostling crowds Nor is it essential for consumers to undergo the expense of operating pleasure automobiles to haul food supplies to the home The individual grocer relieves consumers of this expense and trouble by delivering the choicest foods to the kitchen door

The work of the retail grocers in behalf of the farmers is a story in itself. The power and size of the non-profit Independent Food Distributors Council consisting of 153,000 grocers is almost beyond comprehension Yet this giant marketing organization has quietly functioned for nearly three years, staging frequent nation-wide sales drives whenever surplus crops threatened the welfare of producers

Rettig, 323 West Oakwood avenue and Mr. Everett Binns, manager of the shoe department at the Baumoel store formerly of Greenfield, O. The wedding will take place in First Baptist church.

A series of parties honoring the bride elect are being arranged for the remainder of the month.

AMERICAN GROCERY ORIGINATED BY PILGRIMS 300 YEARS AGO

The American grocery store, as it is known today, had its inception in the early colonial storehouses of more than 300 years ago in New England.

The development, of course, has been through the avenues of evolution, which in turn followed the twists and angles of early settlements and penetrations of the wilderness by audacious pioneers.

The forerunner of our grocery distribution system developed in the region of Massachusetts Bay very shortly after the arrival of the Pilgrims in 1620. It came into being as soon as the earliest settlers were able to organize the raising of summer crops and get orderly fishing and hunting established. The development of marine communications with the old world and the West Indies set up what we describe as "trade," and as soon as trade was assured local markets came into being.

According to historical research by the National Association of Retail Grocers, the early market centers were not very highly organized. The markets included every sort of merchandise in "general" stores. Very gradually these trading posts divided into specialized lines. The process was retarded by existing conditions, such as the pushing out into the wilderness of trading posts to develop the native Indian patronage. These posts obviously, were under necessity of carrying in stock all sorts of commodities.

Those engaged in trade did not get into specialization of lines until the populations along the Atlantic coast had become quite definitely settled into permanent communities and the affairs of business into well defined grooves. Thus it was probably no earlier than the latter part of the century that grocery specialists came into existence to serve the retail trade.

As the population grew in the country and the density increased on the Atlantic shores the settlements became more and more organized in business and social contacts and business began to take permanent form. One of the earlier departures was the segregation of food distribution as a separate form from that of clothing, equipment and household requirements, the arts and luxuries.

Despite its early start, however, the grocery stumbled rather blindly through three centuries of time without achieving a development that today we regard as being worthy of such an important service to all human beings

Through the generations the grocery store was regarded with something of a joking toleration.

The relation of the grocery to public health and well-being apparently was not considered seriously.

However, with the scientific analyses of causes of disease and various forms of ill health there gradually arose a sense of the importance of care in the handling of food assembly and distribution. Since the turn of the century tremendous strides have been made in the methods of preparation, handling and distribution of foods and with those strides there has developed a demand for form in this trade whis is representative of the newer conception of food values.

Refinement of production processes, of storage and preservation, of presentation to the public and of handling and service for the consumer combined with orderly and efficient stock arrangements, today marks a new era in food distribution. Improvement is constant and universal. Fundamentally being the most important of contemporary trade, it has been developed into the most attractive and alluring of commercial pursuits. The third annual week will mark the developments to date.

Here's a Picture Of Grocers Who Are Successful

The successful retailer handles quality merchandise. He watches his costs, and keeps them at a minimum. He renders service to his customers He studies the trend in eating habits, and he knows food values. He helps his customers plan their menus, and he displays a genuine interest in their selection of foods He dispenses courtesy and consideration, he has a ready smile and he knows how to say thank you If he promises delivery at 3 o'clock, the order is delivered at 3 o'clock, by a delivery man who is a credit to the store

He watches his neighborhood and solicits business of newcomers by personal calls. If an old customer stops buying from him, he calls at her home to find out why. When he waits on a customer he suggests items which increase his sales without adding to his costs In a word—he is on his toes! Of course, he cooperates with his wholesalers and his fellow retailers. He attends conventions to learn what is going on in the grocery business He is an active member of his state association, and the national association, and he does his bit to help them to help him. He joins with his fellow retailers in concerted efforts for the common good

STORE IN WHICH LINCOLN WAS A CLERK HAD ONLY TINY STOCK

It is likely that the grocery store in which Abraham Lincoln worked as a clerk down in southern Illinois did not have 100 items in stock. Yet the community which was dependent on the primitive store for food supplies managed to survive. In fact it is probable that the people in that region thought they were living very well, and they were by comparison with more remote areas. But ill health was prevalent and much misery marked the days of the residents How much of it was attributable to the food supply and thereby to diet values may not be known

Of course the pioneers could do very little about their groceries The food supply system was a makeshift. There was no organized service involved. Trade was an individualistic matter; the buyer was the aggressor and the seller indifferent. Profit solely was the essence of all transactions.

The turn of the century was marked by rapid strides in improvement. The considerations of health became paramount. Order and attractive appearance became factors in all merchandising. More and more was learned about food values and the care and preservation of edibles. People became more fastidious regarding their supplies. The trade realized that improvements were imperative because outsiders were coming in with new ideas.

Thus the era of specialization was turned on to the grocery trade. Engineers began improving the physical surroundings for food distribution. Medical science began cataloguing food values Other engineers applies refrigeration and heat and moisture to preservation problems. Manufacturers began the use of sanitary packing.

Artists began tinkering with arrangement and background for eye appeal. City plan experts began developing the location idea. In a word the entire batteries of the world of science were turned on the trade and in a surprisingly short time revolutionized the whole character of the grocery business.

And the bewildering part about it is that the prices of today including this vast scope of refinement, are lower than they were when a heap of miscellaneous provisions constituted a grocery store

IT PAYS TO KNOW YOUR SQUARE DEAL GROCER!
The growth of modern civilization can be traced not too indirectly to the growth of the modern grocer and the ease with which men were enabled to obtain food. For no great cities were built, no great works of art were created when men were obliged to hunt down their every meal. It was not until people were furnished with convenient, satisfying sources of foodstuffs that they were able to turn their energies to other things.
At this time it is wise to stop and consider the part your grocer plays in modern life . . . the things his existence enables you to do . . . the luxuries which his service provides. During National Retail Grocers Week it is fitting that you should know that "It Pays You to Know Your Square Deal Grocer."

P. T. A. TO BRING FAMED PUPPET SHOW TO CITY

Rufus Rose Marionettes Will Give 3 Performances at High School Oct. 28.

One of the nation's most famous puppet shows will come to Mansfield for three performances on Oct. 28, it was announced today by the Council of Parent-Teacher associations which will sponsor the event.

The Rufus Rose Marionettes, with Rufus and Margo Rose, will appear at Senior high school auditorium, with a morning and afternoon show for children and an evening show for adults.

The Rose Marionettes appeared here several years ago shortly after their extended engagement at the Century of Progress in Chicago.

The P. T. A. council is sponsoring the Rose show with a two-fold purpose, that of providing good entertainment for family consumption, and of adding to its operating fund, its officers pointed out.

The first show, to be presented at 10 a. m, will be "Treasure Island." A matinee at 2 p m. will bring, "Pinocchio," and at 8 p m "Treasure Island" will be repeated with the addition of six acts of marionette vaudeville, including a Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers dance act and Sonja Henie's skating act.

General chairman for the project is LeRoy McGinty, who is treasurer of the council and chairman of the ways and means committee.

Tickets will be distributed through the schools by the ticket committee which is made up of Glenn Robinson, Harry Dotson, Glen Rohleder, George Sherman, J. C. Stout, Zane Wilson, Mrs. Russell Moore, and Mrs. Carl Stough.

Other promotion work is in charge of Mrs. D O. Meese, Mrs G. C. Young, and Mrs. Sherman Glessner.

To dunk a doughnut properly, hold it as does Debutante Brenda Frazier in New York, between thumb and third finger of right hand with an index finger to steady it So says Mrs. Gertrude Binney Kay, who told college class in Boston that "dunking's all right on informal occasions—but the hold must be correct." Behind the other "sinker" is Edward Hurd, jr.

CHAPTER 16

IN THE following week Judy pawned a ruby ring that had been her grandmother's, paid her rent, and moved to a rooming house.

She could find no work. Had anyone told her, three months before that jobs were so scarce she would have smiled. She might have taken a dare and tried to find one, and maybe succeeded, since life has a habit of handing favors to those with market baskets more or less crowded.

But now—

She counted her money. Enough for meals and another week's rent. It had been a good ruby. Some day she would reclaim it. At the moment some orange juice, coffee and toast would be better than a jewel as a fortification against the day's search. She slipped into the scarlet woolen frock, the brown jacket, and went to the white-tiled cafeteria on the corner. The air was cold this morning. Her fur coats, two of them, were in storage. Some repair work had been done on them and she did not have the money to reclaim them. The brown jacket, the warmest coat she had, was too thin for such a day.

* * *

Someone had left a morning paper on the table that she chose, and she scanned it idly. Her eyes focused on a small story, not more than six inches long. It concerned her father. It seemed he had well-grounded hopes that one of his investments would be successful. There were financial terms, in the articles, that meant nothing to her.

One thing, though, Judy knew. She would not give up her desire to be independent, worthy of the clothes she wore and the bread she ate, no matter what boon came her way. Not until she had vanquished the obstacles that beset her path would she relax.

She smiled, recalling the mingled worry and admiration in Ronald Birrell's eyes. She would give him no opportunity to call her a quitter.

"It's funny," she mused to a strip of buttered toast. "He likes Abbey Boland, and she's a glittering parasite. Now, as for me, I'm sort of a problem case, and he thinks he has a responsibility, but he wants me to fight it through. Maybe he doesn't — maybe he wants to laugh at me. But I'd better turn to the want ads."

Up and down and straight across her eyes went. Secretaries, stitchers, a teacher in a private school—nothing she could do. A box caught her eye. For a moment she studied it carefully. Then the little imps of mirth that had flashed in her eyes so merrily until a few weeks before came back.

She left the table went to a dial telephone in the corner of the restaurant, inserted a nickle in the slot, and called a number.

"Danceland?" she asked when a sleeping voice said "hello."

"It is, lady!"

"You have an advertisement in the morning paper, saying you need hostesses to serve as dance companions for—for your guests."

"Yeah?"

"I'd like to apply."

"Come around at three this afternoon. I'm the janitor. Nobody else is in. The folks leave about three or four in the morning and don't get back till afternoon."

When Judy made her application in person, promptly at three, she found a dozen other girls waiting, too. The manager singled her out from the group, eyed her shrewdly, and hired her.

"Get here around nine," he instructed. "We close at two. What about evening gowns—got any?"

"Yes, I have."

A small smile caught the corners of her mouth, and her eyebrows lifted upward. She had a dozen evening frocks hanging on velvet-padded hangers in her wardrobe. She had looked on them as a total loss until this morning. Now they would serve a good purpose.

"Any black ones?" the man persued the subject.

"Two or three."

"Good! You're the type who can wear something quiet and give it dash. How about black tonight?"

"Black will be excellent."

She mentally scanned the wardrobe hangers. One dress was a romantic black satin with velvet bows and a padded bustle. She had worn it last to the theater with Craig. Another was a high-waisted model of black crepe worn under a black sequin sleeveless jacket. She and Craig had been house guests at the same house party the night she first appeared in it...Then there was a glamorous shirred black tulle, with spreading skirts and criss-cross straps which held it in place, above a low neck.

* * *

The man scrutinized her again. "No—can the black. You're a little ritzy anyway. Too Park Avenue, but some folks like it. Black might scare 'em, though. What else have you got?"

There was nothing in the wide autumn world which could have been as remote from Judy's mind, three months earlier, than sitting in the modernistic office of the proprietor of Danceland, describing her wardrobe.

She tried to keep the amusement from her voice as she mentioned frocks. There was a strapless gold chiffon, a cream satin as straight as an old Greek temple pillar, half a mile of pale green tulle that wound around her, chrysalis fashion, and a dress with six bright gypsy colors that made a bouffant skirt which was attached to a tight orange bodice. She merely mentioned the colors, though.

"Wear anything," the man finally interrupted. He mentioned a salary, told her the customary percentage of her partners' tickets on which she could count, and dismissed her.

When she arrived at her room, there was a note telling her to get in touch with Ronald Birrell. She called him from the community pay telephone in the lower hall.

He came to the point at once. "Judy have you found your dress sketches?"

"Not a trace of them, Ronald. I've searched and searched."

"There's a dress contest for the best designs being sponsored by a national style group, and this man who took your work and passed it off for his own, is entering. I called your former boss this morning, and he let it out. Seems to think that's proof that the man is honest and talented. He's using your sketches among others."

* * *

An idea was forming in Judy's mind. "Ronald, may I have the address of the contest? I have other sketches. I think I'll try. Wouldn't it be nice if I could beat the crook?"

She knew that Ronald had something else to say to her when she had copied the address. It came at last.

"I have a job I think you'll like. Not a permanent one. But it will be easy enough, and pleasant, until you get a foothold in the fashion world."

"Two jobs in one day. I'm in luck. What do I do? Fill the ink bottles and seat the clients at your office?"

"Much more thrilling. But what's the other job?"

"You tell me first." She knew Ronald was going to object to Danceland. Maybe she wouldn't have to accept it. Now that other work was offered she realized how distasteful it had been. She had been making a golden balloon out of her hope, blowing it up as big as she could, and waving it for courage.

"It's with Abbey Boland. The Bolands are clients of the firm, you know, and I've been pretty much tied up with some law matters concerning them. Abbey's turned to me with her troubles, too—"

"So Abbey has troubles?" She made a grimace at her piquant face which was reflected in a mirror in the dusty hall. "What are they?"

"Abbey is engaged to marry Count Phillippe Alexis Von Gunderfield. He arrives in a day or two and she's swamped with plans and correspondence. She needs someone to help her see it through—someone who knows the way. She's not afraid to pay. You'll be at the Long Island house most of the time."
